

UAW approves 3-year Douglas contract

By CHARLES HINCH
Staff Writer

Members of the United Auto and Aerospace Workers' Union, voting in record numbers, approved a new, three-year contract with the Douglas Aircraft Co. Friday to end a five-month bargaining deadlock. The vote was 4,865 to 2,880.

The agreement provides for a 5.5 per cent wage increase the first year and three per cent increases in each of the remaining two years, terms which pretty well follow an industry-wide pattern, Douglas Griffith, a union spokesman, said.

The settlement is retroactive to Sept. 16, he said, and each workman, on the average, will receive a $600 check for back pay.

UAW Employees now earn $1.80 to $6.69 an hour.

Spokesmen, meanwhile, for the International Association of Machinists, which struck Douglas at midnight Feb. 10, said the UAW settlement—unless it softens management's attitude—will have no effect on their walkout.

"No negotiating meetings have been called," said one, "and the IAM doesn't plan to alter its position. We are separate unions. We will reach separate agreements."

The IAM differs with the UAW over a 21-cent cost of living payment. The UAW gave it up. The IAM claims it will not.

"What the UAW members really decided today," said one worker, "is that they will receive $90 to $100 a week in unemployment compensation instead of $60 a week in strike benefits when Douglas shuts down."

"The IAM's been out almost two weeks now. They make all the parts in the Torrance plant that are used in the Long Beach plant—and the supply has to be getting low. I don't see how they can last more than another two weeks."

"Now, if Douglas closes, UAW members will be eligible for $30 to $40 a week more than they would have received if they had gone out."

The UAW leadership presented the agreement to the membership in a highly unusual fashion. It placed the terms before them with two understandings—(1) it did not recommend them; and (2) it would call a strike Monday if they were not approved.

This procedure, said a workman, "forced the membership to approve the contract without the executive committee and the bargaining committee recommending the terms. I don't know why it was necessary but that was the net effect."

The UAW received the contract Tuesday and members voted all day Thursday and Friday at the union's auditorium in Lakewood. Besides those votes counted for and against the proposal, there were 147 ballots challenged and 20 voided.

A union officer said the 7,678 persons casting

Nixon silent as aides draw prison terms

Combined News Services

PALM SPRINGS — Richard M. Nixon was awaiting his first formal social appearance since resigning the presidency last August as three of his closest former aides were sentenced to prison Friday. He had no comment.

A telephone operator at his beachfront villa in San Clemente said that as far as she knew there were no plans for the former president, vacationing at a secluded desert estate near Palm Springs, to issue a statement.

John N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman were given 2½-to-8-year sentences for the Watergate coverup conspiracy and a fourth defendant, Robert C. Mardian, received a 10-month to three-year prison sentence.

A party will be given in honor of Nixon and his wife, Pat, Saturday night at the Rancho Mirage estate of Walter Annenberg, former U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

Mitchell, former attorney general and director of Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, and key White House aides Haldeman and Ehrlichman stood silently before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica as the sentences were read.

One defense lawyer said the agony inflicted by the three-month-long trial and the prison terms "will be far more than Richard Nixon will ever suffer."

The conspirators showed no sign of emotion. All vowed to appeal the felony convictions — a process that could take up to two years. Sirica allowed them to remain free on their own recognizance in the interim.

Friday's sentencing wrote probably the final major chapter in the scandal which began June 17, 1972, with the break-in and bugging at Democratic

Third body pulled from water near Queen Mary

The third nude male body in two days was pulled from waters near the Queen Mary Friday afternoon after workmen on a coffee break spotted it floating near Pier J.

Police said the victim had what looked like a skull fracture and a three-inch wound on the left side of the head.

The body was that of a stocky, middle-aged Caucasian and had apparently been in the water for four to six days. It was recovered about 300 yards from the spot where a scuba diver found the bodies of two young men Thursday afternoon.

Several employees of Pasha Truckaway on nearby Harbor Scenic Drive spotted the dead man near the surface of the choppy harbor shortly after 2 p.m., according to Detective Sgts. William Bunyon and Robert Bell.

Officers said one of the workmen, Robert Zuniga, 25, ran to the company office for binoculars and reported the body floating face down, drifting toward the rocks at the west end of the pier.

It was there that lifeguards retrieved the victim in a rope sling and transported him to shore where coroner's deputies were called.

The victim appeared to be between 45-55, had dark brown hair, weighed about 165 pounds and was about 5 feet 9 inches.

At about the same time the third body was being removed from the harbor, coroners' deputies in Los Angeles said that the first two victims apparently drowned. They said further tests would be conducted and an autopsy is scheduled for today or Sunday.

The two bodies were discovered at 1:30 p.m. Thursday by diver John Kemp, 20, 3603 Baltic Ave., who spotted them six feet below the surface at the east end of the pier.

Neither bore marks of injury and both appeared to have been in water about 24 hours. Both had drifted against rocks at the end of the breakwater and both had starfish and sea urchins attached to them.

Both were Caucasians in their early 20's, police said. One was 6 feet 2 inches, weighed 180 pounds and had short dark hair and sideburns. The other was 5 feet 7 inches, weighed about 185 and had short blond hair and sideburns.

GM to strip small cars, sell for less as rebates end

Combined News Services

CHICAGO — With its rebate program ending Feb. 28, General Motors announced Friday price reductions of up to $300 on smaller models by stripping them of less standard equipment.

The company also plans to manufacture lighter cars for fuel economy.

Thomas A. Murphy, chairman of General Motors Corp., told industry men that, "We are responding to an economy-minded public by offering nine of our smaller cars with less standard equipment and therefore base prices will be lower by $104 to $313."

He said deliveries of the more stripped autos will begin next month, "giving our customers a wider choice of values and the chance to buy as much or as little car as their pocketbooks will allow."

Meanwhile, the government reported that the cost of living in January rose at the slowest rate since last spring with price drops for clothing, new cars, beef, sugar and home mortgages.

The Consumer Price Index rose 0.6 per cent last month, seasonally adjusted, the smallest monthly increase since April, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said. It was the fourth straight month that retail prices have gone up more slowly.

Coupled with significant drops in wholesale prices in December and January, the latest statistics indicated progress against inflation. But at the same time, unemployment and industrial production, two other major economic barometers, have been worsening.

These opposite trends help explain the lack of improvement in real spendable earnings — the amount the average blue collar worker has left each week after payroll deductions. This figure dropped 1.2 per cent in January, seasonally adjusted, and is 5.1 per cent below a year ago.

Cutbacks in overtime and massive layoffs of assembly line workers have eroded progress on the inflation front, widening the gap between increases in blue collar wages and the rising cost of living.

The January index showed retail prices have risen 11.7 per cent in the last 12 months. It now stands at 166.1 on a 1967 average of 100, meaning consumers paid $15.61 last month for goods and services that cost $10 seven years ago.

Murphy made the announcements of GM's price reductions in a speech at a Chicago Auto Show luncheon.

He said various items of standard equipment, such as radial tires, will be made optional making possible lowering of prices:

—$104 on the Pontiac Astre hatchback, $125 on the two-door Chevrolet Nova, $131 on the Pontiac Ventura, $219 on the Oldsmobile Omega, $229 on the Buick Skylark, $271 on the Oldsmobile Starfire, $305 on the Chevrolet Monza 2 plus 2, and $313 lower on the Buick Skyhawk.

"We think this will put the 1975 GM lineup within the reach of more American motorists and we think they will help 1975 become a better year for them as well as us," said Murphy.

He said the program of taking weight out of cars is one of greatest magnitude ever undertaken by GM. He said it will affect

Challenge by 9 states rejected

Judge upholds Ford tariff

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal judge Friday upheld President Ford's $3 per barrel tariff on oil imports, which had been challenged by nine states on the grounds it would cause economic damage.

U.S. District Judge John Pratt refused to grant a temporary injunction against the levy saying that "our continued dependence of foreign oil threatens our national security, the economy, the posture of our defense and the conduct of our foreign affairs."

Pratt said he cannot comment on whether the

$3 per barrel tariff will effectively reduce oil imports by 1 million barrels per day by the end of the year, but he said, "we must accept it as it is and hold that any interference by way of injunctive relief would be inconsistent with the public interest."

Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Francis X. Bellotti, who represented the case of eight Northeastern states and Minnesota, said Pratt's decision would be appealed.

Ford imposed the tariffs, which tax oil coming into the country, so fuel prices would rise and less of it would be consumed.

Eight Northeast states and Minnesota are challenging the tariff because they say it will cause "amazing economic damage," and seeking a temporary injunction pending an environmental impact statement and public hearings on the levy.

Congress has already rebuffed the tariff, voting a 90-day delay pending a study to determine alternatives. Ford said he will veto the bill, and Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said he thinks the Senate will probably sustain the veto on a close vote.

Bellotti also said that while Ford's national security justification for the tariff could not be challenged, the power under which Ford took the action could.

"National security cannot be used as a public interest blanket under which everything can be hidden," Bellotti said.

The fact that no hearings were held on the tariff was a "consistent example throughout of executive disregard for the public," Bellotti said.

Labor backs S. Viet support

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — With one dissent, the AFL-CIO Executive Council urged Congress Friday to buttress the governments of South Vietnam and Cambodia with military and economic aid.

George Meany, octogenarian head of the AFL-CIO, said although he had been deceived on Indochina by former President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of State Henry

A. Kissinger, the United States had a commitment to its allies there.

Congress is considering a White House supplemental aid request for $300 million of military assistance for the government of South Vietnam and $222 million for Cambodia.

"I want these South Vietnamese people to have the right of self determination," Meany said in a press conference after an executive council meeting.

Meany said the council resolution was adopted with one dissent, that of Jerry Wurf, head of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

The resolution called for "military and economic assistance...by the Congress to buttress the capability of South Vietnam and her neighbors to survive within the limits of the peace accords to which North Vietnam is a signatory."

Meany said, "We've invested 16 years out there. The question is, is the United States going to walk away from our allies?"

Meany singled out Kissinger as one of the persons who deceived the American public on the southeast Asia war.

Winds lash Southland; driving hazardous

Swift but warm winter winds whipped across Southern California and southwestern Arizona Friday, creating hazardous driving conditions inland and churning up coastal waters.

National Weather Service spokesmen predicted the winds, which gusted up to 25 miles an hour Friday, to be back in the Southland today, accompanied by fair skies and temperatures in the low 70s. Temperatures were predicted to dip into the low 40s overnight.

Weathermen said that the gusts, which also sent scores soaring in the Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open Golf tournament, whipped across the Southland as the aftermath of a dry storm front that passed through earlier in the week.

Small craft advisories were in effect Friday from Point Conception to the Mexican border, and the Highway Patrol issued travelers advisories for

The storm's most serious effect occurred on Interstate 10, about 14 miles east of Quartzsite, Ariz., where the Department of Public Safety said at least two persons were killed in a fiery crash of 10 vehicles.

The crash occurred when dust cut visibility to zero, officials said.

The highway between Phoenix and Blythe was closed because of blowing dust.

Meanwhile, winds gusted between 40 and 50 miles an hour on Highway 101 between Windy Point and Indio. At Riverside, the winds reached a velocity of 45 to 50 miles an hour but no damage was reported.

There were gusts of 30 to 35 miles and hour in the Imperial Valley, 35 to 38 at Palm Springs, 30 at Van Nuys and 20 at Los Angeles International Airport.

Weather Service officials said moderately choppy seas were reported at Long Beach, with waves three to four feet high at Redondo Beach and Newport Beach. Seas crested at two to four feet at Huntington Beach and Zuma Beach.

Though weathermen predicted the winds to continue today, forecasters said they should diminish in the afternoon, leaving the Southland with fair skies and slightly warmer temperatures Sunday.

S. Viet chief urges aid hike

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — Tran Van Lam, president of the South Vietnamese Senate, Friday appealed for congressional approval of $300 million supplementary aid requested by President Ford to hold off massive Communist attacks and sustain the credibility of the U.S. as a Saigon ally. In an address to a National Press Club luncheon, Tran said South Vietnam did not want an open-ended commitment but that "self-imposed limitations on our side, instead of inducing the Communists to similar restraints, seem to have encouraged them to press on with their acts of aggression." Tran said that "the real issue is not only the amount of supplemental aid which the American administration has requested for Vietnam. After all, barely six years ago, the Vietnam War required the participation of nearly 600,000 American troops and annual expenditures of $30 billion...a little less than $100 million a day. Next to such figures, the requested $300 million does not appear exorbitant, if one allows that the job has to be done."

Dean fee contested

NEW YORK — A legal action has been filed to prevent the payment of $3,000 to Watergate defendant John W. Dean III for a lecture next Wednesday at St. John's University, it was disclosed Friday. Business Prof. Robert Mockler said state Supreme Court Justice Daniel Fitzpatrick issued an order Thursday directing the sponsors of the lecture to show cause why the payment should not be banned. Mockler said that the object of the action was not to prevent the lecture but to block the fee provided for in Dean's contract on the ground that such a reward to a convicted felon might make it appear that crime pays.

INTERNATIONAL

Ethiopian civil war rages

ADDIS ABABA — The heaviest fighting in the 22-day-old Ethiopian civil war between Moslem secessionists and loyalist troops ripped across Eritrea province Friday, inflicting heavy casualties on government forces. In the Eritrean capital of Asmara, 30 Americans manning a strategic communications base were evacuated under fire as nearby rebels and government troops battled with artillery, small arms and mortars. "It's just like Vietnam all over again," one evacuated American said. "It sounded at times as if those rounds were dropping pretty close." The base is a onetime secret facility, an important link in the worldwide American communications network, and it relays messages to Polaris nuclear submarines in the Indian Ocean among other functions.

Cambodia route cut

PHNOM PENH — Communist-led rebels cut Cambodia's last land link to the outside world Friday, ambushing a train near the Cambodian-Thailand frontier and killing or wounding 71 persons, military sources said. Street rioting and looting broke out in two provincial capitals because of high prices and shortages of food, fuel and consumer goods. On the battlefield, the command ordered besieged government defenders to hold the royal capital of Oudong at "all costs" while fighting raged in the city streets, military sources said. The sources said the commander defending Oudong, 18 miles from Phnom Penh, had reported the city was "submerged" by a rebel attack and asked for permission to retreat but was turned down. In cutting Cambodia's rail link, insurgents ambushed a train just after it left Battambang city, 156 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, and struck a mine. The railroad runs parallel to a highway — already cut by the rebels — that links Cambodia and Thailand. Until Friday it was Cambodia's last land route to the outside world.

Trade collapse hit

WASHINGTON — The collapse of the U.S.-Soviet trade agreement raises questions about the American government's ability to live up to even more serious commitments, a ranking Russian official said Friday. Vladimir S. Alkhimov, Soviet deputy trade minister, charged Congress with repudiating the trade accord by unwarranted efforts to force a change in Russia's law governing Jewish emigration. Speaking through an interpreter, the Russian said the "Soviet people ask us if the American government gives its word in a peaceful area like trade and does not honor it, how can we believe that their commitments in more complicated areas will be honored."

EAST MEADOW, N.Y. — Staff obstetricians at the Nassau County Medical Center are refusing to perform abortions on women more than 12 weeks pregnant unless the mother's life is in danger, Dr. Donald E. Eisenberg, the center's superintendent, said Friday. Eisenberg said the action was taken because of the doctors' "deep concern" over the conviction last Saturday of Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin of Boston on a charge of manslaughter in the death of a fetus.

Train wreck hurts 21

WOODBIDGE, Va. — A southbound freight sideswiped the Amtrak Florida-to-New York passenger train "Silver Star" Friday injuring at least 21 of the 442 persons aboard, but none seriously. One passenger said that a disaster might have occurred if the accident had happened five minutes earlier because the trains would have then been over the Inland Waterway.

Rightist leader slain

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Terrorists killed a right-wing labor leader Friday and bombed branches of foreign banks in a fresh burst of violence in Argentina. A carload of gunmen shot Teodoro Ponce, a national committeeman of the powerful steelworkers union, as he walked down a street in Rosario, a major city 200 miles north of the capital. He was the seventh person to die in political violence or in antiguerilla operations in three days. At the same time in Rosario, 14 bombs damaged banks and auto dealerships. Among the targets were branches of the First National City Bank of New York, the Bank of Boston, the Bank of London and South America, and the new Italian Bank.

Keeping the peace

BELFAST — The outlawed Irish Republican Army plans to stick to its current cease-fire despite a wave of bombing and shooting attacks against Catholics, an IRA spokeswoman said Friday. Marie Drumm, vice president of the Belfast Sinn Fein, the provisional IRA's political front, said the violence was the work of Protestant extremists trying to provoke a breakdown of the truce, which began Feb. 10.

EDINBURGH, Scotland — Margaret Thatcher made her first meet-the-people tour Friday since her election as Conservative Party leader 10 days ago and was rescued with difficulty by police when thousands of enthusiastic supporters mobbed her. During a "walk-about" in a downtown Edinburgh shopping area, Mrs. Thatcher was forced to take refuge in a jeweler's store until six hefty policemen cleared a pathway through the cheering crowds back to her automobile.

Albert aide, lawyer indicted on fraud

Combined News Services

A federal grand jury has indicted a secretary to U.S. House Speaker Carl Albert and a lawyer living in Lewisville, Tex., in an alleged scheme to defraud criminal defendants and convicts' families by claiming influence with Albert.

The six-count indictment was unsealed Friday in Dallas by U.S. District Court Judge Robert Porter. It accused Pauline Girvin, 52, of Alexandria, Va., a secretary to Albert, and Joe Ben Champion, 57, of Lewisville, of five counts of wire fraud and one count of mail fraud.

The indictment alleges Champion would introduce his clients to Miss Girvin and tell them that she and the House speaker were working on their cases.

The indictment alleges that "Champion held himself out as a lawyer and would tell his clients...he could get their cases fixed by Carl Albert."

He would tell them that because of his influence with Albert, he could have charges dismissed or get them out of jail and then have the charges dismissed, the indictment claims.

Champion would then collect his fees, and introduce the clients to Miss Girvin, the indictment states.

However, the indictment says, Champion did not do "anything of substance" for the clients.

Pines drops 'party' prostitute charges

VAN NUYS (UPI) — The city attorney's office Friday dropped prostitution charges against 45 women who were arrested last December at a hotel party sponsored by police.

City Atty. Burt Pines, although finding "probable cause" for the arrests, said the charges were dropped because convictions in the case were unlikely.

He said a jury might be hesitant to hand down convictions because of the "creative activity" of police in their attempts to catch prostitutes.

The party at the Sheraton Universal Hotel began with an advertisement in the Los Angeles Free Press last October, calling for "sexy hostesses needed for gambling junkets. Entails foreign travel. Expenses paid."

Police, who placed the ad, then set up two offices at 6404 Sunset Boulevard where undercover officers interviewed 150 prospective "hostesses."

"Nearly 50 of the women were later invited to the party Dec. 22 in a suite at the Sheraton Universal where undercover vice officers posed as high rolling gamblers.

Police said they arrested 45 of the women when they propositioned officers, and they were taken to another hotel room where a special booking unit had been set up.

The city attorney's office said six women who have already pleaded no contest to trespass charges in the case will be given an opportunity to withdraw their pleas.

L.A. council votes to 'clothe' newsrack nudes

The Los Angeles City Council, incensed over pornographic newspaper displays, has voted to draft an ordinance requiring opaque covers on all sidewalk newsracks to shield nudity from public view.

The council instructed the city attorney to draft the ordinance Thursday, 10-2, despite a report by the Police, Fire and Civil Defense Committee that the attorney would not approve its legality.

After a motion to reconsider was defeated, committee chairman Arthur K. Snyder said, "I'm going to bring in that ordinance and let you idiots vote for it!"

Snyder said the proposal by Councilman Joel Wachs would mean that the city would "spend thousands of dollars drafting the ordinance, engaging in debate at $75 a minute to eventually defeat something that never should have been passed in the first place."

A veto by Mayor Tom Bradley of an ordinance banning all coin-vended sidewalk newsracks was upheld by the council earlier.

Defending his proposal, Wachs said, "This simply says that portions of the front page of newspapers described in the previous ordinance we passed have to be opaque so that they can't be seen from public view."

He referred to an ordinance approved last May which prohibited the placement of newspapers in newsracks in such a manner that "nude pictures depicting the private parts of the human body or female breasts are visible from outside the rack."

The ordinance was enjoined by the Superior Court before it became effective, however, and the case is still awaiting trial.

Snyder warned that the new draft proposal would mean that every newsrack in the city would have to be opaque and that it would be impossible to see the date of the newspapers.

Snyder replied, "If you could see through it you would lose the whole purpose...If you can't see through it, you can't tell what's inside."

Wachs insisted, however, that the only opaque portions would be those covering nudity or pornography. He didn't explain how it would be done.

Councilman John S. Gibson Jr. suggested, "Couldn't we leave a little peephole in there so that those who want to see naughty pictures can peek through?"

Councilman Dave S. Cunningham, supporting Wachs, said he was confident newspapers would find a way to display their editions and dates behind the covers.

Days in court

Los Angeles police officers, as all officers, are required to appear in court on cases in which they are involved. When called to court in their off-duty hours, they are compensated only for three hours, even if they are there all day. Hundreds of these officers, on every court day, spend up to eight hours in court. They are being cheated out of hundreds of thousands of dollars for this time. How can the city force its officers to work overtime without compensation? B.P., Long Beach.

When an officer has to be in court in off-duty hours, he gets paid time and one-half for 3 hours, that is, he gets 4 1/2 hours pay in cash. When the funds allocated for overtime pay runs out, usually in September, an officer gets 4 1/2 hours off from duty, according to Los Angeles Police Department spokesman Sgt. Victor Liu. He said the average time an officer spends in court is 3 hours and the policy on overtime pay gives him credit for 3 hours whether he spends 15 minutes or stays all day. If an officer goes to court twice in one day on two separate cases, he gets credit for 6 overtime hours, thus 9 hours pay or 9 off. Most of the officers approve of this policy and feel it is fair, Liu claimed. Up until five years ago, there was no provision for overtime pay, he added.

Mystery woman

Could you assist us at the Long Beach Day Nursery, 1548 Chestnut Ave., in solving a mystery? Since 1939, the Day Nursery has received checks every year for $5,000 to $6,000 from a fund left by a woman who lived in Long Beach. Her name was Altha Fry and that is all we can find out about her. Additionally, four or five other organizations receive checks from funds left by the late Mrs. Fry. Can you find out more about our benefactor? E.K., Long Beach.

No. None of the many long-time, Long Beach residents we phoned could tell us anything about your benefactor. Nor could they tell us if Altha Fry and Allison Bixby Frye, another Day Nursery donor, could have been the same woman. A newspaper article dated Sept. 3, 1937, fished out by a librarian at the Long Beach Main Library, said Mrs. Frye had just donated $1,500 to the nursery. Action Line would like to hear from any reader who may be able to help solve your mystery.

All for charity

I am a licensed self-employed contractor and I was asked by a charitable organization to construct some lattices and arbors for the group's annual ball. I was assured that my services would be tax deductible, and the organization provided me with an itemized statement indicating that my donated labor amounted to $862 worth of work. My tax consultant now informs me that I can't deduct this amount even though I gave up paying jobs to assist this organization. Can't I deduct the services I performed? W.S., Long Beach.

No. You were misinformed by the charitable organization. Internal Revenue Service regulations do not permit deductions for donations of services or labor, according to an IRS spokesman. You may deduct, however, any amount that you spent for materials that were donated or transportation costs up to 7 cents per mile. Deductions for donated services aren't permitted partly because of the difficulty in assessing the value of a person's time. Although there usually is a standard rate for work such as yours, there is no way to place a monetary value on most types of voluntary services.

Shades of the past

Is there any place in the Long Beach area that cleans lamp shades? C.G., Long Beach.

Action Line could not find anyone locally who still does this type of work, but the Anabelle Lamp & Shade Studio, 8361 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, cleans hand-sewn shades. A spokesman for the firm said shades that are pasted together at the seams generally will not hold up under the cleaning process. If your lampshade is not too heavily soiled, you may be able to clean it yourself with a product called Rubgum, which is available in some stores, such as George's Lamps, 16213 S. Clark Ave., Bellflower. Another alternative you might consider is having the shade recovered. Locally, the Mari-Bey Shade Co., 1741 Atlantic Ave., does this type of work.

Ward won't quit, vows to press probe of sheriff

Supervisor Baxter Ward said Friday he is not giving serious consideration to Sheriff Peter Pitchess' proposal that both men resign and that he will instead continue to press his inquiry into alleged mismanagement in the Sheriff's Department.

"I do not intend to let down in this inquiry," Ward told an afternoon press conference, adding that he "wouldn't trust him (Pitchess) to quit."

WARD referred to Pitchess' earlier proposal that both men resign their county positions and vow never again to seek or hold public office.

Pitchess, meanwhile, stood by that offer Friday and told Ward he thought the two of them should resolve their conflict "for the betterment of county government."

The sheriff outlined his position in a letter to Ward, saying he would not question Ward about the supervisor's land holdings in Kern County.

"I unequivocally repeat the offer I made yesterday; you leave your position as a supervisor, agree never to seek or serve in public office again, and I will vacate my office as sheriff of this county," Pitchess wrote.

"If you do not accept my offer, I strongly recommend that we mutually agree to resolve our conflicts for the betterment of county government and the people we serve," he added.

THE TWO have been skirmishing across the county all week.

Ward, who has made a reputation for himself as the crusading supervisor, contends the sheriff's department has been mismanaged and that personnel have been used for business other than that of the county.

Pitchess, meanwhile, has opened an investigation of what he says are irregularities in Ward's sale last year of 584 acres of Kern County land.

The promoters in the business deal, which included a subdivision to "Club Little Europe," were accused of discriminating against blacks, Jews and Mexicans, but the investigation ended when they agreed to halt any illicit or illegal practices.

Ward later sold the land but still holds a mortgage on it.

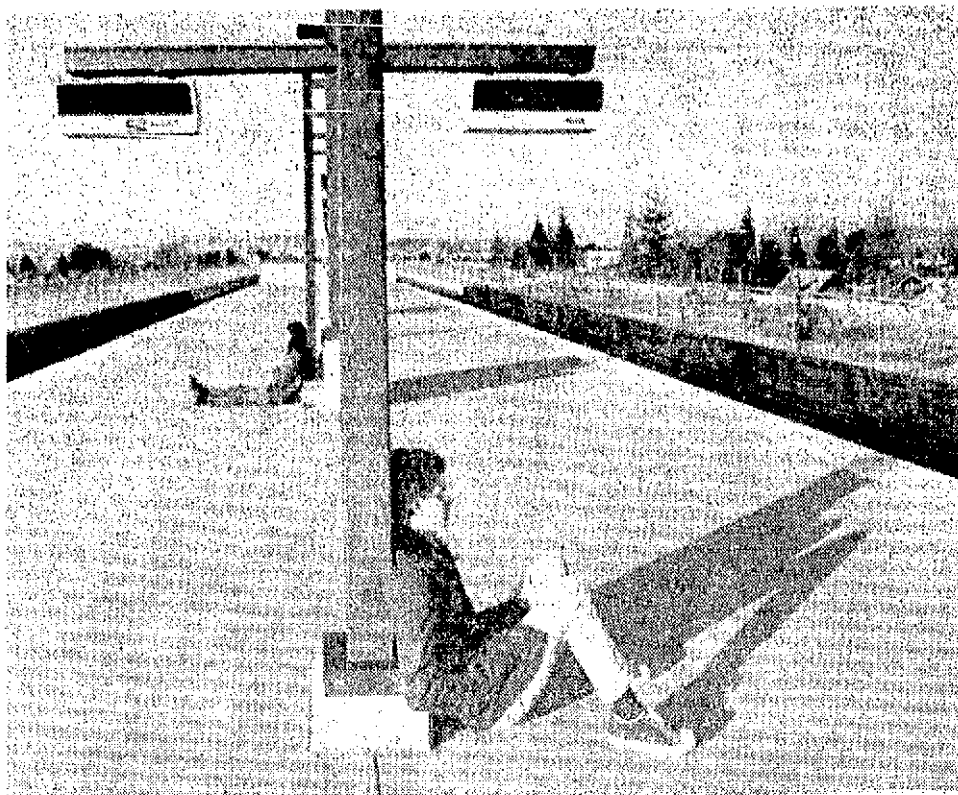

Ward told Pitchess Friday he would be willing to answer any questions about the property for the sheriff, the sheriff's lawyer, members of the state Real Estate Commission, the Los Angeles district attorney's office, the attorney general "or any proper person you might choose to designate for the purpose."

THE supervisor called Pitchess' allegations unjustified, and denied any fraudulent land dealings. Nevertheless, he told Pitchess:

"If your charges are correct, I would consider myself unfit to serve on the Board of Supervisors one more day."

Pitchess answered that the matter has been turned over to the state attorney general — "the proper and established method for investigating a multijurisdictional matter."

Ward had reportedly submitted "a tentative letter of resignation" (to become effective if Pitchess could prove his charges against the supervisor) with his request to meet with Pitchess. The status of that letter, however, was not known after the sheriff said he would not question Ward and instead suggested the two call off their cross-county feud.

BART COMMUTERS wait at Oakland's Rockridge Station after a computer failure forced half the trains to stop running and the others to move at one-third the normal speed.

Computer fouls BART system

OAKLAND (AP) — The Bay Area Rapid Transit system's computer broke down Friday, creating massive rush hour delays in three counties and sending thousands of commuters scuttling for their cars.

A spokesman for the $1.6 billion system said the nearly five-hour breakdown that ended at 7:51 a.m. was caused by a stuck panel which prevented the computer from getting sufficient information to function. All trains were switched to manual control and the top speed was slashed from the usual 80 miles per hour to 25 miles per hour.

"It was purely a mechanical hardware problem," the spokesman said.

He said 50,000 commuters usually ride BART's 71-mile system each morning. The overflow of harried BART commuters jammed local freeways and one radio station advised listeners to leave home an hour later than usual.

BART information officer Dave Kelsey said that during the breakdown only 16 trains were running compared with a normal 30. He said the "net result of half the trains at a third of the usual speed" at least doubled morning commuting times and BART urged riders to find alternate ways to get to work.

"The central computer is responsible for releasing trains from the station only when it is satisfied that the interval between them is correct, that the preceding train is far enough along line," Kelsey said.

He said the breakdown forced BART to rely on radio contact for controlling all train movement.

The safety of the problem-plagued BART system has been the subject of a Public Utilities Commission hearing in San Francisco this week. The hearing was called after the Jan. 19 collision of a BART test train and a service vehicle in which one person was killed.

County counsel cancels cat's kitty

SAN JOSE (AP) — In his will, Robert Weiss bequeathed his entire estate to a kitty to support his pampered cat, who lived on fresh cracked crab, shrimp, scallops, and chopped liver.

But Santa Clara County legal officers say that California law bars animals from inheriting the proceeds of a will.

Brian Carr, deputy county counsel, said the probate court will be asked to divide the Weiss estate — estimated at from $6,000 to $8,000 — between a brother and a nephew.

Weiss, 53, a World War II veteran, died last November in the house trailer where he lived with the mixed breed brown and white cat as his sole companion.

In his hand-written last will, Weiss directed:

"I wish to leave whatever property, real or personal, to my cat, whose name is 'Kat.'"

He also instructed that a friend, Jean Goettge of Menlo Park, be named executrix and assume responsibility for Kat's welfare.

Miss Goettge declined to assume executrix responsibility for the estate, but is caring for Kat in her home. Disposition of the estate therefore goes to the county administrator.

Inga Nobriga, of the county administrator's staff, said inspection of his refrigerator showed that Weiss had provided Kat "only the best."

L.A. trial on Oakland school slaying denied

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A federal court judge refused Friday to move the murder trial of Symbionese Liberation Army "soldiers" Russell Little and Joseph Remiro to Los Angeles.

Little and Remiro, accused of the cyanide-bullet killing of Oakland Schools Superintendent Marcus Foster in November 1973, asked that their trial be moved from Sacramento to Los Angeles.

U. S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride said, "Frankly, I don't see that is appropriate for the federal court to interfere with an ongoing state case."

The trial is set to begin Monday in Sacramento County Superior Court.

ATTORNEYS for Little and Remiro said they wanted the trial moved to Los Angeles because the ethnic composition of that city more closely resembled that of Alameda County, where the slaying took place.

State welfare chief opposes cuts in benefits

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's health and welfare chief said Friday he opposes any benefit cuts for more than 1.3 million family welfare recipients because of federal slashes in state grants.

The Associated Press learned in Washington that the Health, Education and Welfare Agency cut state family welfare grants by $97.2 million for the first quarter of the year.

That cut includes $7.2 million to California's $1.2 billion program of aid to families with dependent children, financed by federal, state and local funds.

Mario Obledo, Gov. Brown's director of health and welfare, was asked if the federal action forces him to reduce welfare benefits from the average of $232 a month. He said in an interview:

"IF I HAD to answer that now, I'd say no, there will be no cuts. I don't see how the people make it now on the amounts they receive. To be truthful, I think they should get more."

"If I make the decision, there will be no cuts."

Obledo said to make up for the loss of federal funds he would review administrative level programs for cutbacks.

HEW is making the cuts in its continuing campaign against ineligible and overpaid recipients.

New Medi-Cal contract denies poor false teeth

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's new Medi-Cal dental contract will deny false teeth to about half of the poor who would have been eligible for them last year, a state consultant said Friday.

"About 49,000 dentures were authorized last year and estimates are that the new contract will save about half of those," said Dr. William J. Dolan, a consultant with the Department of Health.

THE NEW Brown administration program has drawn complaints from groups representing the elderly and from some lawmakers, both Republicans and Democrats, who contend it will prevent many low-income elderly persons who should have dentures from getting them.

Assemblyman Barry Keene, the Eureka Democrat who chairs the Assembly Health Committee, told administration officials that most members of his panel had a "deep concern" about the new contract.

He said in a letter to health director Robert Gnaizda that testimony of one witness at a special hearing on the contract "raised substantial questions about the wisdom of the dental service cuts."

UNDER the new contract, signed earlier this month with California Dental Services, the state's 2.3 million Medi-Cal recipients are eligible for dentures only if they're needed for employment or to prevent a "significant disability."

Brown returns 157 unsolicited gifts to donors

By DOUG WILLIS

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Brown has returned thousands of dollars in unsolicited gifts the past seven weeks, including a lifetime pass to Disneyland and an oil painting of a political rival.

Bill Stall, Brown's press secretary, said Friday that 157 unsolicited gifts have been received by the governor's office since inauguration day Jan. 6.

He said all have been returned with form letters except a few which arrived anonymously. Those were turned over to the Department of Finance for disposal, with proceeds going to the state, Stall said.

Stall said the gifts range from a gold-plated frisbee to a statue of Jesus.

Among books which have been received and returned to their donors are a Bible, a Latin translation of "Peter Rabbit," a complete encyclopedia set and books titled "The Myth of the Middle Class" and "Why I Should be President," Stall said.

"About half have been books, and a lot of other little things — several ash trays, two gilded eagles, a lot of calendars, a gold pass to Disneyland, a membership in a tennis club, a race track pass, and so on," Stall said.

HE SAID THE VALUE of the returned gifts "on the conservative side is thousands of dollars. It is hard to estimate, but the Lawrence portrait came with a letter saying it was appraised at $2,000."

M. Larry Lawrence, the former Southern California chairman of the Democratic party who bolted the party to head the "Democrats for Flournoy" campaign, sent Brown a portrait of himself as "a peace offering."

Asked how the system works, Stall said: "The stuff comes in, they open it and take the letters to the people in the correspondence section, and then pack it up and ship it back."

"A crate of oranges rotted and had to be disposed of. But with perishables, we return them if there is time. One anonymous person sent a $20 bill. We turned it over to finance."

Stall said persons who send unsolicited items to Brown get this letter:

"Dear —
"Gov. Brown asked me to thank you for your thoughtfulness for sending him —"

"Because of his belief that elected officials should not accept gifts, the governor has asked that all gifts sent to him be returned to the donors. This is in keeping with the spirit of the political reform initiative, which the governor supported."

"Your gift will be returned soon. We appreciate your understanding."

"Sincerely,
"Agnes T. Barling, administrative assistant."

Southlander tapped for key state post

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Gov. Brown named a longtime insurance company executive as state insurance commissioner Friday.

The Democratic chief executive also filled three slots on his office staff naming a former United Farm Workers union official and a former U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare employee to two of the posts.

Brown named Wesley J. Kinder, 53, to head the state Department of Insurance.

Kinder, from La Habra, was vice president of General Reinsurance Corp. of Los Angeles before joining the new administration. He has worked for various insurance companies since 1938.

Kinder, who is registered "decline to state," was a chief deputy insurance commissioner in 1969-70 under former Gov. Ronald Reagan.

If confirmed by the state Senate, Kinder will receive a salary of $37,212 a year.

Brown also named Rudy Ahunada as controller in the governor's office.

fice, Florence Kong as deputy appointments secretary and Preble Stolz as director of the Office of Planning and Research.

Ahunada, 30, was controller from the UFW Organizing Committee from 1967-71. After leaving the UFW, he became director of finance for the East Los Angeles Community Union, a neighborhood service organization.

Ms. Kong, 38, was assistant project director for a study by HEW in 1973-74. He has also been a real estate broker in Los Angeles.

Stolz, 43, has been a professor at the Boalt law school at UC Berkeley since 1961. He also served as a deputy attorney general under Brown's father, former Gov. Edmund Brown Sr., from 1958-61.

Stolz graduated from the Reed College in Oregon with a degree in economics before receiving his law degree from the University of Chicago.

Stolz will receive an annual salary of $34,104, while Ahunada and Kong will be paid $24,000. All are Democrats.

Prop. 9 injunction refused by court

Associated Press

A Los Angeles Superior Court judge has denied a request to block implementation of Proposition 9, the political reform initiative.

Judge Harry L. Hupp refused to issue a preliminary injunction sought by a group of Sacramento lobbyists who contend the proposition infringes on their civil rights.

The proposition, approved overwhelmingly by voters last June, places tight limitations on the amount lobbyists can spend on legislators and state officials. It also bans campaign contributions from lobbyists.

Daniel Lowenstein, chairman of the commission set up to enforce the proposition, said Friday that Hupp's decision would allow the commission to "continue our work of implementing and enforcing Proposition 9 in the interests of honest and open government for the benefit of all the people."

Hupp said in his decision signed Wednesday that he doubted the lobbyists' contention that the proposition was an infringement on First Amendment rights.

"Even if First Amendment coverage is afforded to political contributions, a compelling state interest is found in the necessity to protect the lawmaking and administrative process against improper influence," Hupp said.

The lobbyists are being represented by the law firm of former Gov. Edmund G. Brown Sr. in the suit.

Suits filed too far from debtor's homes barred

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal Trade Commission official ruled Friday that it is illegal for businesses to file lawsuits for bill collection in courts at an unreasonable distance from debtors' homes.

The ruling by Administrative Law Judge Harry R. Hinkes was specifically directed against Spiegel, Inc., a Chicago-based catalogue house which Hinkes found regularly sued out-of-state residents in Cook county (Chicago) courts.

THE complaint which initiated the case had accused Spiegel of filing suits in Chicago against debtors who lived thousands of miles away in some cases. When such debtors failed to appear, judgments were entered against them by default. Even if Spiegel never collected the money owed them, customers' credit ratings would be seriously damaged, complaints said. Hinkes found on the basis of briefs submitted by commission and Spiegel attorneys that "the distance, cost and inconvenience of defending such suits in Illinois placed a virtually insurmountable burden on out-of-state defendants." He thus found that the practice violates the objectives of the state law under which the suits had been filed, deprives debtors of their constitutional rights to due process of law and falls within the Federal Trade Commission act prohibition against unfair practices. Spiegel said during the proceedings it has stopped filing Illinois law suits against out-of-state debtors. Spiegel said it has used the practice although it did challenge the commission's authority to act on the issue. Hinkes' decision is subject to appeal to the full five-member commission. Spiegel could also appeal an adverse decision from the commission to the courts. Hinkes ordered Spiegel in the future to bring suits against debtors only in the counties where the customers live.

THE SPIEGEL complaint was originally issued last August simultaneously with three others accusing Montgomery Ward and Seattle-based collection and credit companies with using similar practices.

Montgomery Ward and West Coast Credit Corp., which operates Fidelity Finance Co. offices in Washington state, negotiated settlements under which they promised not to file such suits in the future.

Commercial Service Co. is still negotiating a possible settlement with the commission.

would have returned on the street.

In its packaging operations, Trager said, the ring discarded as much as a half a pound of narcotics at a time, rather than go to the bother of reclaiming it from 32-gallon mixing containers, where the residue had adhered.

The indictment ended an investigation which began nearly four years ago.

NEW YORK (AP) — Twelve persons were in custody Friday in the breakup of a multimillion-dollar retail and wholesale dope operation, described as the "largest ring in the country catering to blacks."

But the man identified as the leader of the ring, Frank "Mark IV Frank" Matthews, remained at large — the most wanted federal fugitive since outlaw John Dillinger in the 1930s. He jumped $325,000 in bail two years ago in a similar narcotics case.

In all, 18 persons, including four women, were named in a Brooklyn federal court indictment, charging they smuggled in and distributed vast quantities of heroin from Europe and cocaine from South America, through New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Miami.

U.S. Atty. David Trager said the size of the ring was indicated by the seizure in a single raid in 1972 of 2.5 million glassine envelopes, used to package the dope for street sales.

Trager said some insight into the ring's profits came from an informant. He told authorities he was directed to put money for a buy in a double-doored closet. When he did so, he claimed, he found bundles of bills stacked to eye level.

Authorities did not disclose the quantity of drugs involved, nor did they say how much they

ABA medical chief tells reasons

U.S. brain-death standard backed

CHICAGO (AP) — Hospitals spend thousands of dollars a day and waste precious specialized facilities on patients who may be dead, a doctor-lawyer who wants a new legal definition of death said Friday.

Medical science has progressed to the point where current definitions of death are inadequate, said McCarthy DeMere, chairman of the American Bar Association's Law and Medicine Committee. DeMere, an attorney who is on the staff at Baptist Hospital in Memphis, was interviewed at the ABA's midyear business meeting.

THE ABA'S House of Delegates will decide next week on the committee's proposal that death be defined for all legal purposes as "a human body with irreversible cessation of brain function, according to usual and customary standards of medical practice."

Forty-six states now define death as the stoppage of heartbeat and breathing, said DeMere. The definition was adopted nearly 70 years ago, he said.

Only Kansas, Maryland, Virginia and California now have laws defining death as the cessation of brain activity. But proposals for such a definition are pending in 14 other states, DeMere said, and ABA resolutions often are used as models in preparing laws relating to medicine.

With life-sustaining equipment, a heart may continue beating and a body maintain respiration for as many as two or three weeks after brain activity has ceased, said DeMere.

"FAMILY members believe where there's life, there's hope. But what they don't understand is when you have irreversible cessation of brain activity, you have no hope," DeMere said.

He said that the cost of total care in hospital intensive care units can range from $1,500 to $3,500 a day.

"If it continues for two weeks, it runs to about $40,000," he said. "It could wreck a family without adequate insurance. It would be much better for the doctor to say to the family, 'Your brother is dead; he is now a corpse.'"

DeMere said that on the contrary, doctors almost always follow family wishes because they fear possible lawsuits under current definitions of death.

"THERE'S hardly a day you can't go through an intensive care unit of a big hospital and there will be three, four, or maybe even more, in my opinion, dead human bodies," he said.

DeMere said the committee's proposal is based on an 18-month, $200,000 study, during which it received information from theologians, philosophers, attorneys and physicians.

"The proposed definition is an important personal, medical and social concept and can reduce the agonies and expenses associated with prolonged maintenance of vegetative bodies," the resolution states.

Doctor 'justifies' refusal to deliver baby

LATTA, S.C. (UPI)—Dr. Dan F. Mooror said Friday there was nothing unethical in his refusal to deliver a baby whose mother did not have enough money to pay him. "My conscience is clean," Mooror said. "I don't see why it shouldn't be."

Mrs. Shirley Jean Abrams, 23, gave birth to the 7-pound, 2-ounce girl Saturday in an ambulance parked near the Marion County Memorial Hospital.

Mooror said he had told the woman as early as November that he would not deliver the baby and had made preparations to have her case taken over by the county health department, but that she never went to the department.

"She did nothing whatsoever to help herself," he said.

Mrs. Abrams said she did not go to the health department because she had forgotten the doctor's suggestion.

Bobby Phillips, co-administrator of the Marion County Hospital, said the woman was not admitted to the hospital because only emergency cases are accepted without a doctor's authorization and obstetric cases aren't considered emergencies.

Both Mrs. Abrams and the baby were doing fine Friday.

Mooror said he has received several abusive telephone calls following news reports of the incident and he had to take his telephone off the hook Thursday night so he could sleep. He said he had hired a lawyer to investigate possible legal action in connection with the news reports.

Dr. Donald Kilgore of Greenville, president of the state Medical Association, said Friday the organization will investigate the incident to determine "if repetition can be avoided."

The baby, named May Francis Abrams, was delivered by rescue squad members Saturday after Mooror and several other doctors refused to deliver it. Mrs. Abrams has two other children, both delivered by a physician who has died.

Mooror said he stopped treating Mrs. Abrams Nov. 30, 1974 because she was behind in her payments of $7 per office call and hadn't saved the $350 he charges to deliver babies.

Mooror said that $350 is the cheapest delivery cost anywhere in the area. He said he requires his patients to sign a contract the first time they visit him.

Mooror said Mrs. Abrams, who dropped out of school after the fourth grade and got married at the age of 13, signed the contract after he made sure she knew what she was signing.

"I tell them you have ample time in which to raise the money," he said. "I don't require it until the seventh month."

Multimillion-dollar drug ring smashed

NEW YORK (AP) — Twelve persons were in custody Friday in the breakup of a multimillion-dollar retail and wholesale dope operation, described as the "largest ring in the country catering to blacks."

But the man identified as the leader of the ring, Frank "Mark IV Frank" Matthews, remained at large — the most wanted federal fugitive since outlaw John Dillinger in the 1930s. He jumped $325,000 in bail two years ago in a similar narcotics case.

In all, 18 persons, including four women, were named in a Brooklyn federal court indictment, charging they smuggled in and distributed vast quantities of heroin from Europe and cocaine from South America, through New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Miami.

U.S. Atty. David Trager said the size of the ring was indicated by the seizure in a single raid in 1972 of 2.5 million glassine envelopes, used to package the dope for street sales.

Trager said some insight into the ring's profits came from an informant. He told authorities he was directed to put money for a buy in a double-doored closet. When he did so, he claimed, he found bundles of bills stacked to eye level.

Authorities did not disclose the quantity of drugs involved, nor did they say how much they

Proposed health rules 'peril' poor

By SUSAN SWARD

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Proposed state health rules should be scrapped because they threaten hospital care for 2.3 million low-income Californians, a coalition of public interest groups claimed Friday.

At a Capitol news conference, the groups contended the regulations were so strict that the only people who would receive care under the federal Hill-Burton system would be illegal aliens, runaways and indigents.

"That is hardly a large category," scoffed David Landau, spokesman for the San Francisco-based Health Policy Center.

He said the 2.3 million others who need care are people whose medical bills are not paid by the state or private insurance. But state officials said no one knows how many people are in this category.

"THE PROPOSED REGULATIONS deny these 2.3 million low-income people free or below-cost access to the health facilities their taxes helped build," Landau added in a statement he read to reporters.

Landau also said: "The proposed regulations were drafted under the Reagan administration and reflect that philosophy. They are a slap in the face of the working poor."

The Department of Health, which held a hearing on its proposed regulations Friday, should not adopt the regulations state officials drafted because they are seriously deficient, the groups said.

Vince Vande, a department spokesman, said the hearing raised many "substantive questions" that probably would prompt a review of the regulations before they are finally adopted.

NO FINAL STATE action will be taken on the regulations until after March 15.

The groups contended that the Hill-Burton law sets up a formula requiring private hospitals receiving federal construction subsidies to give a percentage of care to low-income people.

But they said many hospitals have reneged on the law's requirements and have been forced to comply when suits were filed against them.

The state has been given the authority to enforce the federal law. Such enforcement is the object of the proposed regulations that the groups were protesting.

Also present at the news conference were spokesmen for the National Health Law Program and the Accountants for the Public Interest.

NONE OF THE spokesmen present contended that an easing of the regulations would solve all the medical problems of the 2.3 million Californians they said were affected.

But Esmond Coleman, spokesman for Accountants for the Public Interest, said: "You will save a lot of lives and stop a lot of illness. It's not utopia but it's a damn sight better than what we have now."

Critic defends CIA's spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading advocate of stronger congressional control over the CIA concluded Friday that its past domestic spying violated citizens' rights but "was nothing earthshattering or significant."

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., made the comment to newsmen after a closed-door briefing by CIA Director William E. Colby for the House defense appropriations subcommittee.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, meanwhile, said that Colby is right in deploring the "almost hysterical excitement" surrounding reports of the agency's activities.

CHURCH, who heads the Senate committee looking into CIA activities, said he feared an over-excited public climate might hamper his probe. Giaimo said Colby has admitted in public testimony that "There have been violations of rights." The congressman also accused former CIA Director Richard Helms of giving congressmen misinformation.

"Fortunately nothing earthshattering or significant has taken place," Giaimo said. "But it should serve as a warning to a free people to always be on their guard against any type of secret agencies."

Giaimo said what Colby has called the CIA's "few missteps" also show the need for stronger control over intelligence agencies by the administration and Congress.

HE SAID "a great deal has been accomplished" toward establishing such control as a result of press disclosures of CIA domestic spying, including infiltration of antiwar dissident groups, and as a result of the Watergate-inspired move for government reform.

An example, Giaimo said, was the fact that Colby for the first time delivered his top secret briefing on CIA operations Friday morning to the full 12-member defense appropriations subcommittee rather than a select group of senior members.

"We're now going to be able to question them, to object to areas of their budget," he said.

Giaimo and other members refused to answer any questions on the content of Colby's briefing.

A major area still to be taken up by the House and Senate select intelligence subcommittees, he said, is whether CIA covert operations abroad are really needed.

"ARE THEY fruitful?" he said. "Are they worthwhile? Should the United States as a free nation morally involve itself in the types of activities that have been alleged to have taken place with our intelligence operations in places like Chile?"

Colby acknowledged after the briefing that the House and Senate investigations may result in some reorganization of CIA activities.

Navy training Saudis, Iranians in Southland

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The U.S. Navy is training four companies of Saudi Arabians at the Naval Training Center and several Iranian air crews at nearby Miramar Naval Air Station.

Two companies of 51 Saudis each are halfway through a 13-week recruit training program, a spokesman said. The trainees arrived at the station Dec. 18.

Two other companies totaling 76 men completed basic training Dec. 6 and are taking classes to prepare them for Navy technical schools. The men arrived at the training center after learning to read and write in English at the Defense Language School at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.

The Navy spokesman said the classes were conducted in English at the insistence of the Saudi government. The preparatory classes involve more instruction in language.

In addition, three Saudis not attached to the companies are taking special welding and internal communications classes.

The Saudi government reimburses the United States for the cost of the training, which is part of a transaction involving sale of 26 escort, patrol and raider boats to Saudi Arabia.

At Miramar, the training is related to the Navy's agreement to sell 80 of the Navy's new F14 Tomcat fighters to Iran. Most of the training will be provided by Grumman Aircraft, manufacturer of the Tomcats.

The Saudis also are buying 60 light-weight F5 fighters from Northrop Corp. of Hawthorne at a cost of $750 million and are reported to be negotiating for other U.S. arms.

'Cheap shot,' says ex-officer; turns down Saudi training bid

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A corporation with a $77 million Defense Department contract to train Saudi Arabian troops is trying to hire skilled military men for bargain basement prices, a former Green Beret said Friday.

Eugene Scales, a former Special Forces major who said he advised both South Korean and South Vietnamese troops during his military career, told UPI he turned down a job as chief of the infantry branch in Saudi Arabia and was urging other career soldiers to take similar action.

Scales displayed a letter from R.H. Montgomery of Vinnell Corp.'s Alhambra, Calif., headquarters offering him the infantry chief's job for $1,500 a month, which he termed an "extremely cheap shot."

Scales said he already had performed such "executive mercenary" work in another foreign country since quitting the Army 4½ years ago at substantially better wages and benefits.

Scales said he agreed completely with the concept of a private concern doing the advising to free U.S. Army regular troops for other duty, with the host country reimbursing the Defense Department for the work.

Scales said Vinnell's wage offer would amount to $29,250 for an 18-month tour, without benefit of any cost of living provision, no rest and recreation and no retirement credit.

"A regular U.S. Army major would earn $34,493.16 for the same tour plus all the benefits," Scales said, "so in view of the Arabs hunting places to spend their money nowadays and the state of the U.S. economy, the Arabs wage offer should be at least competitive."

Vinnell executives telephoned Scales this week in San Antonio to restate their offer, he said, and he turned it down again on the basis of wages.

Col. Holland said he would get someone else at that price," Scales said. He referred to one-eyed former Col. James D. Holland who is rounding up 1,000 ex-Special Forces troops and infantrymen to train King Faisal's 26,000-man Royal Palace Guard for Vinnell.

Scales said the money probably sounded good to young veterans out of work, but all they knew was to follow orders and would not be able to carry out the advisory assignment effectively.

Scales jotted down figures on his estimated cost of the Vinnell operation and estimated the company should clear $15 million on the operation at the wages it pays.

$50 million said needed to find illegal aliens

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The nation's top immigration officer said Thursday that a $50 million appropriation and passage of pending legislation would be needed to find the one million illegal immigrants believed to be working in America.

Leonard F. Chapman, Jr., commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service said the money would be needed to hire 2,000 more immigration agents. The legislation — sponsored by Rep.

Peter Rodino, D-N.J., would make it a felony for employers to hire foreigners without work permits.

"To me it seems absolutely incredible that with 7½ million Americans out of work there are one million illegal aliens with jobs," Chapman said at a news conference during an inspection of the New Jersey INS office.

About 800,000 illegal aliens were found last year, he said, adding that it costs vast sums to deport them.

U.N. panel demands archbishop's release

Associated Press

The U.N. Human Rights Commission in Geneva demanded on Friday that Israel immediately release Archbishop Hilarion Capudji, the prelate convicted of gun running for Arab guerrillas.

The Israeli representative, Ambassador Eytan Ronn, promptly told newsmen the commission "has no jurisdiction whatever" in the case and that his government will ignore the demand.

Ronn added that "most Christian countries voted against the resolution which shows it served only political aims." In Jerusalem, a top Israeli legal official called the commission's demand astounding and said it "smacks of intervention in our internal affairs."

THE U.N. commission also condemned the "desecration of Moslem and Christian shrines, disrespect and ill-treatment of religious leaders and violations of rights of worship" in Israeli-occupied territories. The vote was 21-6, with the United States, Britain, France, West Germany, Italy and the Netherlands dissenting. The commission has 32 members, but only 27 participated in the vote.

Israeli officials in Jerusalem pointed out that Israel has frequently denied in the past any desecration of religious shrines, and both Israelis and independent observers have said that Israel imposes no restrictions on worship or religion.

Msgr. Capudji, leader of the Greek Catholic Church in Jerusalem, was sentenced to 12 years "after an open trial and conviction, and nothing has happened since to alter that," an Israeli source said. The Israeli Foreign Ministry reacted angrily in December after the Vatican expressed "pain and regret" that Msgr. Capudji had been sentenced.

Msgr. Capudji was arrested last August on charges of smuggling pistols, automatic rifles, ammunition, grenades and enough explosives for 150 bombs in his Mercedes limousine on return from Lebanon.

Bentsen scores Ford charges of partisanship

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr. said Friday that President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger cannot have a foreign policy partnership with Congress if they continually charge critics with political partisanship.

The Texas Democrat, a candidate for his party's 1976 presidential nomination, renewed his criticism of Ford and Kissinger in a speech prepared for delivery at the Washington Press Club.

"I WOULD like nothing better than to have an effective foreign policy partnership between Congress and the executive branch," Bentsen said.

"But I will not be a silent partner or a limited partner," he added. "There will be questioning. There will be criticism and analysis. There will be suggestions and policy guidelines. There will and must be prior consultation."

Bentsen said that his speech two weeks ago suggesting that Kissinger give up his overseas missions and position as presidential adviser to concentrate on being secretary of state produced "instant analysis" from the White House.

"I was accused of playing politics with foreign policy, of being partisan, of being unfairly political," he added.

THEN, he said, Ford attacked "what he loosely calls the interference of Congress in foreign policy making" while he and Kissinger "insist they want a foreign policy partnership with Congress."

"Mr. Ford and Mr. Kissinger cannot have it both ways," Bentsen said.

Theologians blast current fads, affirm basic tenets

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

WASHINGTON — A group of young, essentially mainline theologians have launched a sharply critical attack on contemporary fads and "creeping or crawling humanism" in modern theology.

In a 1,000-word statement, the theologians reaffirmed the basic, traditional tenets of the Christian faith and attacked 13 pervasive themes they believed undermined the church's sense of the transcendent.

THE DOCUMENT, known as "The Hartford Statement," was signed by 18 theologians, including five Roman Catholics, two Eastern Orthodox, six Lutherans, two Christian Reformed thinkers and one person each from the United Methodist, United Presbyterian and United Church of Christ denominations.

It is aimed at the audience that makes most contemporary theology — college professors of religion, church policy makers, and editors — and is attempted as major corrective to the drift of most modern theological thought.

In particular, it rejects the tendency of many theologians to deny the transcendence of God in order to make the church into an arena for social concern and action.

"This supposition leads some to denigrate God's transcendence," the statement said.

BUT IT also rejected the conservative position of those who hold "a false transcendence (and) withdraw into religious privatism or individualism and neglect the personal and communal responsibility of Christians for the earthly city."

"From a biblical perspective, it is precisely because of confidence in God's reign over all aspects of life that Christians must participate fully in the struggle against oppressive and dehumanizing structures and their manifestations in racism, war, and economic exploitation."

The norms for the church's activity in the world, it said, "derive from its own perception of God's will for the world."

OTHER contemporary themes rejected by the signers included the idea that modern thought was superior to all past forms of understanding reality, that all religions are equally valid, to realize one's potential and to be true to oneself is the whole meaning of salvation, that the purpose of worship is to promote individual self-realization and human community and that the question of hope beyond death is irrelevant or marginal to the Christian understanding of human fulfillment.

Signers of the statement included Peter Berger

Church asks Ford to fix files

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Church of Scientology Friday asked President Ford to order all federal agencies to make their files on religious groups available to groups for correction of false information.

The request was made during an hour-long meeting between members of the controversial church's National Council of Scientology Ministers and Dr. Ted Marrs, Ford's recently appointed liaison with the National Council of Churches.

Rev. Arthur Maren told a news conference following the meeting that the council had asked Marrs to deliver to Ford a petition calling on the President to "direct the federal agencies under your control to make available to any religion or church, upon their request, any records or information collected on that religion and its activities and to expunge from those files and records ... any false, malicious or defamatory information that can be proven to exist."

MAREN said the church began investigating government files when the Scientologists and 10 other groups, including the National Council of Churches, showed up on the so-called "enemies list" kept by the Internal Revenue Service during the Nixon administration.

"We have studied this situation and have traced much of the difficulty certain religious organizations are experiencing to the prevalence of false information on them and their activities in the files of various federal agencies," Maren said.

"Although the Freedom of Information Act should assist churches in uncovering and correcting this inaccurate data, our experience shows that government agencies have not been in compliance with the spirit of the law," he added.

The Church of Scientology has some 60 suits in various stages of litigation against both government agencies and individuals in the U.S. and abroad related to files kept on the church, Maren said.

MAREN said Marrs promised he would carefully go through the church's documentation and give serious consideration to the church's petition to Ford. But he did not give an indication of when there might be a response from the White House on the petition.

"We are optimistic that the President will act positively to help preserve the guarantees of freedom of religion in the United States," Maren said.

Book Reviews

California Atlas for history buffs

Only the scholar had access to the information offered by the 101 lucid maps in this volume, a sin qua non for the California history buff. Now the invaluable facts are available to all; the maps cover every phase of California history from the Indian era and the first Spanish explorations, to the routes to the goldfields the Pony Express, to our own day.

All the physical characteristics of the state are here, including the chief faults and earthquakes. The text is equally invaluable, discussing not only such early matters as the Mexican land grants and the stage coach roads, but the St. Francis Dam disaster, the Santa Barbara oil spill, the major land fires, among many other matters.

The Ghost Stories of M. R. James. St. Martin's, $15.

Montague Rhodes James (1862-1936) was a Provost at King's College and at Eton, and an eminent medievalist. Between 1894 and 1927 he wrote, often for his friends, for a troop of Boy Scouts, for boys at a choir school, ghost stories which have become classics. There aren't any better ghost tales in the language than Count Magnus, Mr. Humphries and His Inheritance, Two Doctors, to name a few of many in this collected volume.

Some other topnotch, recent books:

Saturday's Son, By U Nu. Yale University Press, $15.

Independent Burma's first prime minister, in exile since a military coup, writes a candid and fascinating book of memoirs — of a youth that was amoral, conversion to devout Buddhism; his role in bringing about the release in 1955 of six U.S. airmen; his journey to Moscow, where he learned of Beria's downfall; the civil war in his own country. The translation from the Burmese is admirable (the work of U Lwe Yone).

Bertolt Brecht's Berlin: Scrapbook of the Twenties. By Wolf von Eckardt and Sander L. Gilman. Anchor Press, $15.

Here, in a dazzling wealth of photos, sketches, newspaper frontpage reproductions, is the decadent and vulgar, yet artistically fantastic Berlin between the two world wars, the Berlin that the great poet and playwright Bertolt Brecht knew, of lively cabarets, concert halls, highly original and daring cinema and theater, brilliant entertainers, artists, writers, musicians. Here too are the political upheavals, from the workers' uprising of 1919 to the eve of Hitler's takeover.

Scotland: An Anthology. Compiled by Maurice Lindsay. St. Martin's, $17.50.

In a volume that is redolent of the heather, eight centuries of prose and poetry deal with the places, history, pastimes, mysticism, countryside, character, religion, lovers of Scotland.

The Writer's Place. Ed. By Peter Firchow: Univ. of Minnesota Press.

Prof. Firchow and the 23 writers, both noted ones and some not yet well known, give us a thoughtful picture of the social role of the writer in today's England. Firchow interviewed publishers and editors as well.

Samuel Palmer. By James Sellers. St. Martin's, $45.

Samuel Palmer (1805-1881) the English visionary landscape painter, was the most important of William Blake's followers. This precocious artist exhibited at the Royal Academy when he was 14. Art historian, critic and artist Sellers brilliantly discusses Palmer, with 160 examples of his work.

They are the Community Baptist Church of Torrance (formerly the First Mexican Baptist Church of Torrance) and the First Baptist Church of Carson (formerly the Avalon Village Baptist Church). The merged congregation will use the building at 451 E. 223rd St., Carson.

New morality

"The New Morality and Changing Attitudes Toward Life" will be the topic of a symposium in the small auditorium of the LBSU Student Union Feb. 28 at noon. Principal speaker will be Harvey G. Commentary

Of God and whales

By MARK CLUTTER

"Then God said, 'Let us make man in our image and likeness to rule the fish in the sea, the birds of heaven, the cattle, all wild animals of the earth, and all reptiles that crawl upon the earth.'" (Genesis 1:26.)

Until about 1800 man gave little thought to his stewardship of his planet. Men were too few and the instruments of destruction too naive. There was no way to do much permanent damage to earth and its creatures.

In 1975 the wanton destruction of natural resources looks more and more like the ultimate blasphemy, the final sin that can destroy mankind.

One of the more horrible of the assaults on the earth and its future is being carried out by Japan and the Soviet Union. In a few years their arrogant greed, if unchecked, will have destroyed all the whales.

The United Nations has set limits on whale-hunting, but Japan and Russia coldly ignore world opinion. The two nations take 80 per cent of the world's catch. Japan is the worse offender.

Eighteen of the most preligious conservation organizations in the United States have banded together to boycott the products of the two nations. In half page newspaper ads across the nation the conservationists are urging total boycott of all goods imported from Japan and Russia.

The Japanese do eat whale steak. But most of the use of whale is industrial. It is all unnecessary. There are many substitutes.

The Russians feed whale meal to minks and other fur-bearing animals. Any aristocratic lady might well ask some questions before she tries on the mink coat.

The slaughter goes on relentlessly. Japanese and Russians kill another whale every 14 minutes. Two million whales have been slaughtered in this century. Some species may have reached the point of no return.

Oceanographer Jacques Cousteau said: "The only creatures on earth that have bigger — and maybe better — brains than humans are the Cetacea, the whales and dolphins. Perhaps they could one day tell us something important, but it is unlikely we will hear it. Because we are coldly, efficiently and economically killing them off."

Any pastor seeking a sermon topic might do well to meditate on whales. The destruction of these great beasts is a religious issue.

THE HEAD of one of the nation's largest Bible colleges has run away with a 20-year-old coed.

Dr. A. Ray Stanford, 58, founder and president of Florida Bible College, Hollywood, Fla., left a tape to be played at assembly. It told 1,400 as-founded students of his decision. He and the girl have not been seen since.

Such things happen, although not usually with such dramatic shock.

But why do they happen?

Psychologists tell us that abrupt changes in behavior are symptoms of mental illness, often complicated by severe physical illness.

This is especially true of older people. Young people sometimes change their directions rather suddenly without harm. They are more flexible.

About all older people can do safely is modify and moderate their behavior slowly. They give up playing football and take up golf. Some become more mellow and kind. But they do not toward crime is still suppressed — but it is approaching the explosion point.

BE WARY of charity.

Many of us are on "patsy" mailing lists. We receive, from time to time, earnest appeals to contribute money to take food and the Gospel to the orphans of Patagonia. Often these appeals show talent. There are heart-wrenching photos and prose designed to open the purse of Scrooge. Some, as an added inducement, offer contributors raffle chances on new cars.

The one thing they usually don't tell is what happens to the money. It is doubtful that a simple, one-page letter can be sent for 25 cents if one counts postage, stationery, salaries. The fancier the mail appeal, the greater the cost.

"A workman is worthy of his hire" — but the executives of these mail order appeals are the judges of how worthy they are. No mention is made of their salaries. Probably a few boxes of oatmeal and some paperback New Testaments reach the poor orphans.

Because of our religious freedom governments are reluctant to discipline fraud done in the name of Jesus and charity.

Therefore, let the giver beware. Any decently run church sends an annual financial report to its members. Organizations such as those found in the United Fund are glad to tell what they do with your money.

Sometimes even a few dollars given wisely means the difference between life and death for someone.

The dollars given to mysterious "missions," "foundations" and "appeals" serve two purposes. They are tax write-offs and they give the giver a vague feeling of self esteem.

As charity it would be better to give your money to the first beggar you meet on the street. True, he may spend it on booze, but at least you have done a direct act of kindness to an actual human being.

How to read Bible

By MARK CLUTTER

A man checked into a village motel at midnight. He was tense because of a hard day. Sleep was impossible. No place was open in the little town. He wished he had bought a magazine or a novel. He opened a drawer and found a Gideon Bible. He read until he was sleepy. Although he had gone to college he was a stranger to the Bible.

Dr. Frank M. Kepner, pastor of the First Baptist Church, 1000 Pine Ave., was asked to comment on the man's experience.

"I imagine he was confused," Dr. Kepner said. "He may have read something which made him want to know more. But he went about reading the Bible in the wrong way. Many Christians make the same mistake."

"You don't buy a novel or a biography or a technical book and open it at random. Bible reading should be systematic."

This doesn't mean that the beginning Bible reader should start with the Book of Genesis and plow through to Revelation. "I recommend starting with the Gospel of St. John," he said.

This doesn't mean that the Old Testament or the rest of the New Testament should be neglected. "So many churches today have failed to give a panoramic view of the Bible. They especially tend to slight the Old Testament, but without it the New Testament lacks meaning."

"The Bible can be outlined in ten words. 'Someone is coming.' That is the Old Testament. 'Someone has come.' That is the Gospels. 'Someone is coming again.' That is the rest of the New Testament."

There are two ways to regard the Bible, Dr. Kepner said. It can be considered great literature. Or it can be accepted as the authoritative Word of God.

"I've been preaching 40 years and I believe as firmly today as when I started that this is God's Book."

"The Bible reader should not get involved in unnecessary arguments," he said. "There are two ideas about the story of Jonah. One is that a great fish did actually swallow the prophet. I am inclined to believe this. The other is that the story is just an allegory or parable. Ministers have furiously debated the question."

"But the point is that it is unimportant. The story is not about a fish. It is the story of Jonah's mission to the terrible city of Nineveh."

For four years Dr. Kepner has been preaching verse by verse through the New Testament at the Sunday evening services. He is now into the Paul's Epistle to the Philippians.

"When Paul wrote this letter he was in prison in Rome. He knew that the mad emperor would have him beheaded. And yet Paul can say 'Rejoice!' 17 times in the letter."

"When one can understand the historical background the Bible takes on deeper significance."

"Bible reading should not be limited to passages. There is the beautiful, often quoted thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians which begins 'Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels... Its beauty is deepened when one understands what the epistle is about. The church at Corinth was the mostly worldly of the churches. Its members were involved in 'speaking in tongues.' Paul was calling the Corinthians back to the essentials."

"I wish someone would produce a Bible with a large foreword for each book explaining the historical setting and the character of the author."

Dr. Kepner is much in favor of the new translations. His preference is the New English Bible. The English language has changed since the days of King James and scholarship has added much to better understanding.

He is not opposed to non-Christians reading the Bible as literature. "I think the Bible has value for everyone," he said. "It teaches a special kind of human dignity. It teaches that man has no good in himself. It dignifies man by saying 'God loves you.' We have the dignity of being the human beings whom God loves."

"The Bible doesn't talk about success. It tells us to be faithful. That is not the philosophy of this world."

The serious Bible reader should attend a church study, he said.

He should also not expect instant knowledge. "When I come to a passage I don't understand I pray and meditate. Sometimes the answer comes to me."

The Bible, he says, improves human behavior. He quoted the famous 19th century preacher, Charles Spurgeon: "The Bible will keep you from sin, or sin will keep you from the Bible."

The reader should learn to do some judicious skipping, especially in the Old Testament. The books of Numbers and Leviticus offer little except to scholars, he said.

Letters

On Concordia

Religion Editor:

As a visitor in your city, I was startled in reading your religion column to find complete inaccuracies passed off as facts. As one who is deeply concerned and grieved by what has happened, may I point out a few of the inaccuracies?

Dr. Tietjen was not fired as president last October. He was suspended, pending an investigation of the charges brought against him, with none of the benefits of his position denied.

He was relieved of his office months later after repeatedly stating publicly that he would not defend himself and, in fact, defiantly refusing to face his accusers. He lost the case by default.

Secondly, the Board of Control did not fire the 48 faculty members and thus cause "Seminex" to come into being. That part of the faculty walked out of its own free will, trying to cause the collapse of Concordia Seminary.

After a month they were given the opportunity to return to their classrooms, without reprisals. The 48 did not see fit even to reply. After that who can call it being fired?

One more thought. We can all respect a person who holds positions at variance with ours if he openly holds and champions them. On the other hand, it is difficult to credit with integrity a man, or the faction he champions, who found it necessary to promote their views and doctrines in a subversive manner, always denying a variance of doctrines or a toleration of vacancies until they could no longer deceive the majority. Such a cause and its defender is at the least, highly suspect.

A challenge to Christians

This letter from the Rt. Rev. Robert C. Rusack, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Los Angeles, was read in all Episcopal churches in the huge diocese last Sunday. It is published here in the belief that it has a message to all Christians.

My dear brothers and sisters of the diocesan family:

Greetings in Lent in the Name of the Lord.

The world is now faced by an acute crisis of greater dimensions than any since the Flood. It is hard for me to believe that nations have become ungovernable, that technological advances, as well as vice and violence, have outstripped our capacity to control them.

It is most difficult for me to accept that powerful governments must capitulate to the economic and political dictates of a handful of persons ruling over medieval serfdoms in which slavery and polygamy are even yet practiced.

I believe that we can find effective political and economic formulae to assist us from coming to grief and ruin in a convulsion of unprecedented proportions. Past civilizations fell because of ailments afflicting the body politic in the intangible domain of the soul and the spirit.

As a Christian family we must reassert that there can be no brotherhood of man without the Fatherhood of God, and we must show this in action. We Christians must respond to the ecological crises, to the problems of hunger, and must show our repentance in a change of life-style.

A powerful response can come as we tackle the problems in the light of scripture, and by the discipline of prayer and study.

Your bishop hopes and prays that each congregation will act responsibly by becoming informed as to the consumption of resources on "this fragile earth, our island home."

Hunger is a direct result of our misuse of this planet. We must learn how we can deal with this, and under the Fatherhood of God work for brotherhood that will keep us from capitulation to inimical forces and allow us to reverse our dash to destruction.

I firmly believe that by consecrating our public life no less than our individual conduct, religious perceptions and commitments can offer our stricken generation the solace, the strength and the faith to see ourselves horizontally bound together as brothers and sisters in a fellowship of concern and peace. May we see ourselves as vertically linked with the generations before and after us to consummate our human evolution, from the time we were created in the image of our Maker to the time we shall live in His image.

Thus, I say, respond to His call by informing yourselves as individuals and as congregations. Make use of the trainers and the retreats available in the diocese this spring and beyond.

One way of responding is to deny ourselves, once a week, in consumption and send a gift to the Presiding Bishop's Fund for World Relief. Checks can be sent to the Treasurer of the Diocese, and he will forward the gifts to New York.

Yours for the enrichment of life in our relationship to God and to our fellow humans.

ROBERT C. RUSACK
Bishop of Los Angeles

Testimonials

Policeman's faith

I want to submit testimony even though I know you must have received many already. I am a member of the Los Angeles Police Department and have been for 13 years. For many years my religion was whatever suited me the most. That ranged from sports, to drinking, the opposite sex, etc., etc. Then the day came when I realized from God's word that He as my creator had a claim on my life. As I explored His word I found He had also purchased me out of the slave market of sin through the sacrifice of His Son on the cross. I put my trust in Jesus and asked Him to be my partner and friend as well. As an officer my day consists of sharing all of my daily activities and circumstances with Him. Since He became my Saviour-partner my time spent as a police officer has become, to say the least, exciting. No man has laid a hand on me. At times it has been evident He shields me constantly. I've seen a riotous crowd seeking blood turn and literally flee as I spoke Jesus' name. I have had loaded guns pointed at me, been slashed at with knives with no harm. I've seen a giant of a mental case become calm as a lamb and allow me to handcuff him as I spoke Jesus' name. I've seen criminals change before my eyes as they too turned to Jesus Christ. I've seen addicts of the highest order set completely free by Jesus. One such ex-addict who once hated police officers now goes from police station to police station telling officers of That Holy One who has changed him from a repeat arrestee into an evangelist for Jesus. I've had the pleasure of sharing Jesus with people of all walks of life. Religion? —I don't know. Jesus Christ—He made a man out of me and has given me a career record that any man would envy. He made me, He keeps me, and I look forward to that day more and more when I can see His face, feel those loving scarred hands and tell Him face to face "Jesus I love you, you are everything to me."

Arm to lean on

What does my religion mean to me? Primarily, my religion is a way of life for me. I feel that life is like a journey through a foreign land; my citizenship is in that heavenly city. My greatest joy will come when my journey is over and I cross the river of death to that holy city of God.

My religion teaches me what is pleasing and not pleasing in God's eyes and gives me the power to do right. The only trouble is that because of sin (i.e., selfishness), I often turn my back on God and do just the opposite. But if I come back and acknowledge my sin before God, He will always forgive me.

My religion teaches me that no man is greater or lesser than myself. A man in Red China who sacrifices, works hard, and treats his fellowman decently has as much favor in God's eyes as I do, for God is no respecter of persons.

My religion gives me a solid foundation on which to discern the times; His Word. Something is not "right" just because it is popular. Sometimes to take a stand for God is to be unpopular. Sometimes "wrong" is even legal and acceptable by government.

Finally, my religion is a dynamic thing. New areas for growth in my life open up as I mature spiritually, mentally, and emotionally. Each day I hope to chip away more of the bad habits and attitudes that obscure the beauty of Christ within.

This then is what my religion means to me. Mark Burseth, age 26, a Lutheran by background, but a denominationally uncommitted child of God by habit.

Inner peace

My religion has given me a knowledge of God. This knowledge has led me to love Him. With this love has come the deep inner Peace of Christ. It is the kind of peace that has lasted through sorrow, poverty, and the sometimes monotony of life. There isn't a day in this life that I don't treasure.

Prophecy meeting in Bellflower

The Rev. Roy Gustafson, an expert on Israel, will conduct a Prophecy Conference Sunday through Friday at the Bellflower Baptist Church, 17456 Downey Ave. Sunday services will be at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m., the week night services will be at 7 o'clock.

GUSTAFSON

Pastor John M. Berentschot said that Gustafson has made 82 trips to Israel and is personally acquainted with most of the political and cultural leaders. He has received the "Terra Sancta Award" and a medal from the Israeli Government. His visits have included rugged physical activity such as climbing Mt. Sinai.

Gustafson is an associate evangelist with the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, a job which involves six conducted tours to Israel each year.

Renewal mission

A Christian Renewal Mission will be held at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, 6220 E. Willow St., March 3 through March 9.

It includes a daily Mass at 10 a.m. each morning with special instruction and a daytime program for children and an evening Mission program at 7:30 p.m. The mission will be conducted by Father Dave Tobin, CSSR.

Catholics from other parishes and non-Catholics are invited, said Father Dave Tobin, pastor.

Special kids

There are six Sunday School classes for developmentally disabled children including the mentally retarded in the Long Beach area.

In addition to the regularly scheduled Sunday and Saturday sessions, there is a class at 2:30 p.m. Mondays at the Intercommunity Exceptional Children's Home, sponsored by the Long Beach Area Council of Churches and the Roman Catholic churches.

The following churches have special education classes in religion:

Covenant Presbyterian, 607 E. Third St., 9 to 10 a.m. Sundays; First Baptist Church of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road, 10:30 a.m. Sundays; First Church of the Brethren, 3332 Magnolia Ave., 9:30 a.m. Sundays; Our Lady of Refuge Catholic Church, 5195 Stearns St., 10 a.m. Saturdays; St. Maria Goretti Catholic Church, 3554 Palo Verde Ave., 9 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. Sundays; North Long Beach Christian Church, 1115 E. Market St., 9:30 a.m. Sundays.

Harbor Church expands

While some churches are closing for lack of parishioners, such is not the case of many others. One of those in no danger of standing vacant is The Harbor Church.

Pastor Robert Pruett recently announced that because of crowded overcapacity worship services and Hour of Discovery (Sunday School) classes, the church will have an additional morning worship service and a full second Hour of Discovery program.

"We presently have two Sunday morning worship services, one at 8:30 and the other at 11:00," said the Pastor. "Our Hour of Discovery program, with classes for all ages and four adult electives, begins at 9:45. On Sunday, March 2nd we will add a worship service at 9:45 and a full Hour of Discovery program will be available at 11:00. So, our friends will be able to worship with us at either 8:30, 9:45 or 11:00 and no matter which hour they choose, they'll still be able to attend an Hour of Discovery class."

The Sunday evening worship services, called the Hour of Power, will begin at 6:00 rather than at 6:30.

The Harbor Church is a trans-denominational contemporary Christian Center located on Western Avenue at 254th Street in Lomita. Any questions concerning the new schedule of services or other aspects of the church may be directed to the church office at 325-0373.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

How to understand people

On board ship coming back from Japan one time with my family, my son John was having cokes with some other young people in the ship's lounge when he heard a man at the bar talking in a loud voice to the bartender — about me.

"I don't care," he said (and I have toned this down), "if Norman Vincent Peale is on this ship. I'll drink as much liquor as I want to, and Norman Vincent Peale can go to —" (you know where).

My son told me he was embarrassed by the incident and had left the lounge quietly, and now wanted to know whether he had done the right thing. I told him he had.

"That man is sure down on you, Dad," John said, "and I wonder why."

"I have no idea," I replied, "but here is a study in human nature. So let's watch it and see what we see."

During lunch the next day in the ship's dining room, a very gracious and pleasant man came over to our table and introduced himself. He invited us to a party in his cabin before dinner that night. I'm not all that enthusiastic about shipboard parties, but the invitation was a polite one and I liked the man; so I accepted.

As soon as he left the table, John turned to me in excitement and said, "That's the guy who was talking about you!"

Well, Mrs. Peale and I decided to go to the party anyway, and we did. Our host couldn't have been more polite and, although there was an ample supply of hard liquor, he joined me in drinking a soft drink as long as I stayed. The next day I met him on deck and we walked around a bit. I found him good company and became convinced that John must have been mistaken about him. But John insisted he was right.

Then, the very next day, we walked together and when we came to a secluded spot, he turned rather angrily and said: "I want to ask you a question. Why has God got it in for me? Why did He do what He did to me?"

When I asked what this was, he replied: "My wife and I were married 27 years. I loved her. She was everything to me, and my whole life was built around her. Then God gave her cancer and took her away from me. Now I'm drinking a lot. I don't want to become a drunk, but why did He do that to me?"

Then it was clear why he had cussed me out. You see, if he had cussed God out publicly the bartender would not have stood for it. No one else would either. So he had to use some kind of symbol as a substitute for expressing his resentment of God. And there I was on the same ship, a minister, connected with the church, and the church connected with God. What easier symbol upon which to unload his hate! There was nothing personal about it. He had been hurt and, in his misery and bewilderment was striking out rather wildly.

Fortunately, in the remaining days on shipboard, Mrs. Peale and I were able to get to know this man right well and found him most likeable.

It so happened that I was scheduled to conduct Sunday services on shipboard. I asked our friend if he was in the habit of attending church worship. He replied that he had been when his wife was alive, but no more, for now he felt lonely in church without her. Besides, he was "sore at God."

I told Mrs. Peale of this, and she asked him to go that Sunday with her, explaining that she never had the opportunity of sitting with her husband, and wouldn't he "sit with her." He was too gallant to refuse, and my wife's strategy paid off, for I noticed him singing hymns in the service with a new look of peace on his face. On the following Sunday I had him taking up the offering.

It is often difficult to understand why people do or say certain things. You have to try to be dispassionate and objective, difficult as that may be, and not let yourself become hurt or offended. Ask yourself, "Why did he say or do that? There must be a reason." When you understand people's reactions, then by use of patience and good will you can often heal their hurts and resentments.

Of course all of us are surrounded by people who need understanding and love. When you give that, you will receive it in return.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Get to know someone special.

Yourself, as God created you.

You do it by putting off the old man, as the Bible says, and putting on "the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness." (Ephesians 4:22-24)

This better view of yourself comes step by step as your understanding of the Bible deepens. Which is what a Christian Science church service is for.

You're welcome to come, this or any Sunday.

Union chiefs hit 'FAA mocking of safety efforts'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration has "made a mockery" of air safety efforts, and its lawyerly rules little resemble the reality of procedures actually used by pilots and ground controllers, two union presidents charged Friday.

Testifying in the final day of the longest and most bitterly antagonistic crash inquiry in National Transportation Safety Board history, John Leyden of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization called for immediate, sweeping reform of the FAA.

Leyden's call for reform was strongly endorsed by John J. O'Donnell of the Airline Pilots Association.

BOTH witnesses at a hearing on the crash of TWA flight 514 urged that the FAA be made an independent agency, free of political influence, and that rules for pilots and controllers be rewritten into a single, common handbook.

Leyden's organization, meanwhile, issued an attack in its nationwide newsletter on the conduct of the hearing itself.

"It was the most repetitive, vindictive, self-interest dominated, news-media oriented, well-planned and poorly conducted public investigation since the National Transportation Safety Board was founded," said the PATCO newsletter, which was distributed as the hearing closed.

The chairman of the hearing, Louis M. Thayer of the NTSB, took notes of the PATCO criticism in his closing statement and said: "I should like to add my own observation, that I am not too pleased with it either."

Asked to elaborate after the hearing ended, Thayer said he was concerned about the argumentative attitude and frequent objections presented by attorneys representing the various parties at the hearing.

"I've held a lot of hearings in a lot of places, but I thought this one was more bitterly fought than any of the others," he told reporters.

THAYER attributed the bitter fighting to attorneys attempting to bolster their respective positions in multimillion dollar law suits all in connection with the crash, which killed 92 persons Dec. 1.

The hearing lasted a total of 16 days, seven more than the previous longest NTSB crash inquiry.

"The FAA (has) made a mockery of their mandate to take the lead in providing for flight safety," O'Donnell told the National Transportation Safety Board hearing.

"Somehow we've got to get the FAA into the real world of how the system is operated."

Leyden and O'Donnell clashed, however, over whether radar controllers should be given more responsibility for shepherding jetliners through the skies.

ONE REFORM, Leyden said, should be a requirement for "mandatory radar monitoring of every airliner from the moment it leaves the ground to the moment it lands."

But O'Donnell said there already has been too much transfer of responsibility away from pilots, requiring them to place an unwise degree of "blind faith" in ground controllers.

Leyden expressed much the same criticism of air traffic control rules.

ballots was— by 500 to 1,000—the largest turnout in the union's history.

A close observer of the negotiations said there were some other key features in the approved agreement. He described them this way:

It fixes the formula for computing future cost-of-living increases at one penny an hour for every three-tenths per cent rise in the consumer price index. The company has been paying a penny for every four-tenths of a per cent rise.

It increases what is known as a "cost of living float" in the contract from 59 cents to 69 cents an hour—a fact significant because it is this figure from which the workmen's other benefits are computed.

And it reduces the number of job classifications at the plant from roughly 400 to 197.

Douglas claims the reclassifications are "necessary streamlining measures." Critics of the agreement, however, say "the scheme will lead to hundreds of layoffs in the months to come."

SMALL CARS

virtually every automobile GM produces, large and small, luxury and economy — "almost every Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Chevrolet."

"We will be trimming down the outside dimensions while keeping inside dimensions about as roomy," said Murphy.

"We will be increasing efficiency, and therefore fuel economy, through our engines, our transmissions and our drivelines."

"This multibillion-dollar investment ($900 million for special tools and more than $1.2 billion for facilities) is a measure of GM's commitment to go all out to adjust automobile travel in the United States to our nation's tightened energy budget," he said.

He noted that President Ford has called upon the industry to increase fuel economy by a sales-weighted average of 40 per cent over 1974 models by 1980 and said:

"Our share of that goal at General Motors is not 40 per cent but 53 per cent, or a sales-weighted average of 18.7 miles per gallon across the full line of our cars."

He said if present emission standards were further tightened the effort to meet the 1980 objectives would be difficult and the costs "greatly, and we feel unnecessarily, increased."

"The belief seems to be widespread that holding to the present levels of emissions will be a step backward in our progress toward cleaner air and safer motoring but this is not the case," Murphy continued. "If the government will lift from the industry the burden of meeting ever more stringent standards for five years, we can get the job done faster, more effectively and with less strain upon our resources. By this I mean more than money; I mean the strain upon our employees, our suppliers and our dealers."

"This straining to reach perhaps unattainable goals can only add further to the cost of our cars and trucks, thereby threatening to price them beyond the pocketbooks of over larger numbers of Americans."

Murphy also announced that a new Cadillac model called the Seville, will be introduced this spring with a new type of body and an electronic fuel injection 350-cubic-inch engine.

The BLS report showed these retail price developments last month:

— Food. Restaurant meals rose 1.1 per cent and food in grocery stores rose 0.8 per cent. Cereals, bread, bakery products, soft drinks and candy all rose rapidly, but beef dropped for the fourth straight month. Sugar, poultry, dairy products and processed fruits and vegetables also were down.

— Nonfood commodities. Midwinter clearance sales on men's and women's clothing and rebates on new cars brought big price declines. Used cars, tires and furniture also fell. But there were increases for gasoline, appliances, new and used houses, toiletries, drugs and tobacco products.

Prices of all nonfood commodities jumped 0.6 per cent seasonally adjusted but remained stable when seasonal factors were eliminated.

— Services. Hospital care and utilities accounted for about half the 0.8 per cent January jump. Mortgage interest rates and auto insurance premiums were down, and a Jan. 1 reduction in the federal excise tax helped reduce telephone bills.

The index is the most comprehensive measure of monthly price change. It is based on a nationwide sample of about 400 retail items and reflects the buying habits of urban blue collar and clerical workers who make up about 45 per cent of the population.

USC students arrested on gambling count

Los Angeles police say they arrested 19 University of Southern California students for investigation of gambling after they found a mini-casino in operation at a fraternity party early Friday.

Officers said they went to an apartment near the campus after receiving complaints of noise and found members of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity and some prospective members gambling.

Gunman killed by sharpshooter

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Police shot and killed a heavily armed gunman and safely freed his woman hostage Friday after a six-hour standoff with a small army of authorities at a savings and loan office he had attempted to rob.

A police sniper positioned across the street from the Home Savings and Loan office fired a high-powered rifle into the building, and felled the bandit with a single blast.

The gunman, identified as James S. Dutton Jr., 30, Santa Barbara, Calif., was dead on arrival at Sunrise Hospital from gunshot wounds of the chest, six and a half hours after the siege at the savings and loan office began.

JUST AS Dutton was shot, his hostage, Anita Jetland, 34, a teller at the savings and loan firm, scrambled out a back door of the small brick colonel-style building, where an unmarked car was waiting to take her away. Her condition was described as good.

The end came an hour and a half after an FBI agent delivered $100,000 ransom to Dutton through a drive-up window at the office. The gunman had demanded the money and safe transportation out of the gambling capital as a condition for his hostage's release.

Norwalk 'money back' heroin ring smashed

A $100,000-a-week heroin supply operation in Norwalk which provided a "money back guarantee" to pushers was broken up Friday with the arrest in San Diego of two Tijuana residents, officials said.

The arrests climaxed an intensive investigation by Los Angeles Sheriffs and the Drug Enforcement Administration of an operation which they said had flourished in the city for five years.

Booked were Pablo Jimenez Sicairens, 42, and Graciela De Sanchez Ruiz, 32.

Officials said the two had a pound of heroin in their possession when caught.

Deputies said the pair allegedly provided the drug to suppliers on a consignment basis and if the customer wasn't satisfied, he could return the unused portion and get his money back.

The two were being held in San Diego in federal custody in lieu of $100,000 bail each, authorities said.

Authorities said there were no arrests in the Norwalk area and gave no further details.

NIXON AIDES

National Headquarters in the fashionable Watergate apartment-office complex. What the Nixon White House initially called a "third rate burglary" ultimately forced Nixon to resign.

Nixon, named an unindicted conspirator by the Watergate grand jury that also indicted his top aides, cannot be prosecuted because of President Ford's pardon last September.

Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman were sentenced on charges of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and lying during various Watergate investigations. Mardian drew his sentence on a single count of conspiracy.

Ehrlichman last summer was sentenced to 20 months to 5 years for his role in the break-in at Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office. Sirica said Ehrlichman will serve the cover-up sentence concurrently with the Ellsberg term, which also is being appealed.

"It is the intention of the court that the defendant will serve not less than 30 months or more than 8 years," Sirica said in sentencing Haldeman, Mitchell and Ehrlichman.

A COURT SPOKESMAN interpreted this to mean they would have to serve at least 2½ years before being eligible for parole. In Mardian's case, the minimum term would be 10 months before parole eligibility.

This was confirmed later by Chairman Maurice H. Sigler of the U.S. Parole Board, who said: "After serving the minimum sentence, they will be eligible for parole but not before."

A crowd of several hundred, mostly young people, gathered outside the courthouse as Mardian and Mitchell left through a private exit in the basement garage. Haldeman and Ehrlichman charged through the crowd without a word and hailed cabs.

Only Mitchell commented. As he rode down in the elevator he told reporters: "It could have been a hell of a lot worse. They could have sentenced me to spend the rest of my life with Martha Mitchell."

Thomas Green, Mardian's lawyer, said he thought the sentence was "heavy" and that Mardian was "very upset." Ehrlichman, who proclaimed his innocence during the trial and after the New Year's Day verdicts were returned, told reporters, "I just don't have a thing to say."

HALDEMAN'S LAWYER, John J. Wilson, was the only attorney to bring up Nixon's name in final sentencing remarks to the court. He asked Sirica to remember "that never before has Bob Haldeman been in trouble," that he has lived a fruitful life, and has a wife and four children.

"What Bob Haldeman did he did not for himself but for the President of the United States," Wilson said.

He said the judge should not overlook this loyalty and that Haldeman was "caught up in a political maelstrom that caught a lot of other good people."

Mitchell and Mardian waived their right to make a final statement. But Ehrlichman's new lawyer, Ira Lowe, surprised the audience by proposing an "alternative sentence" of sending Ehrlichman to a Pueblo Indian reservation in New Mexico to give legal assistance to the 6,000 tribe members.

Criticized VA doctors reassigned

By JOANNE NORRIS
Staff Writer

The chief of staff at Long Beach Veterans Hospital said Friday a small number of physicians in the facility's Spinal Cord Injury Service, who were criticized in a report released earlier this week, "will be assigned to function in other areas more in keeping with their particular professional qualifications."

Some of the SCI doctors were labeled "incompetent" in a report made by representatives of the U.S. Senate Veterans Affairs Committee and the Office of the VA's Chief Medical Director made public Monday by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Dr. Ralph Bodfish, new chief of staff at the Long Beach hospital who was praised in the report, said he objected to the document's terming the SCI doctors "incompetent."

"I feel this shouldn't have been made as a public statement," he declared. "It creates a tremendous morale problem among doctors there who are doing a perfectly competent job," Bodfish added the statement also creates patient concern with the quality of care they're receiving.

Bodfish said the complaint about the SCI doctors was based, in his opinion, on personality conflicts among physicians and between doctors and patients rather than on judgments of medical performance.

Nevertheless, he said, the SCI physicians in question will be transferred to other jobs.

Bodfish said other portions of the report pointing out weaknesses at the hospital are "outdated" because of actions to improve general hospital performance made since an inspection team visited the huge facility last November.

For example, he said the hospital's drug problem has been "drastically reduced," although some undercover drug activity may still exist. The report said the drug traffic was better but still a concern. "Every hospital in the country... has a drug problem," he said.

Bodfish said weaknesses in the nursing and intensive care staffing on weekends and at night are being solved as budget and recruitment allow.

The report released by Cranston recommended a new outpatient building at the hospital and Bodfish said one is in the planning stages. It fits into the hospital master plan and should provide "first rate ambulatory care" for patients.

Bodfish said closer affiliation with the UC Irvine School of Medicine to improve teacher training — as recommended in the report — "is coming along beautifully. There is a real family atmosphere between the VA and the medical school with no line of division between the two," he said.

Unsnarling a laboratory computer system so test results will be ready faster is "well under control," he added. There has been improvement in scheduling so patients don't have to wait so long for admission and processing too, he said.

"The tone and atmosphere — the sense of progress, the sense of evolution and development (here) — is very pleasing to experience," Bodfish said. "Patients are beginning to feel it and the staff is feeling it and the central office (of the VA in Washington, D.C.) is recognizing it."

The inspection of the hospital last fall came in the wake of a two-week encampment and hunger strike by members of the American Veterans Movement, which made a number of complaints about the hospital.

Since the encampment in February 1974, the national VA has changed directors and nine major staff changes, including the appointment of Bodfish, have taken place at the Long Beach hospital.

The report cited "dynamic new leadership" being provided by Bodfish, Jesse L. Steinfeld, the new chief of medical service, and Dr. Juan E. Fonseca, chief of the Spinal Cord Injury service.

Student bus fare policy liberalized

The Long Beach Public Transportation Co. has announced it will remove age restrictions on its $1.50 school ride cards on March 1.

Public, parochial, college and university students, regardless of age will be permitted to use the 10-ride school cards all week for all transportation needs.

Students more than 21 years old will be required to show bus drivers their student body cards when presenting their ride cards.

The company also said that rides on the London double-deck buses to the Queen Mary will be reduced from 25 cents to 10 cents for one-way fares beginning March 1.

A double-deck bus leaves the intersection of Third Street and Long Beach Boulevard for the Queen Mary every 30 minutes between 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. daily.

Future space flight will help 'you, me'

While American efforts in space in the past decade have had long-range benefits, future space projects will have more immediate results, former astronaut James A. Lovell Jr. told an audience at Long Beach State University.

Lovell, who took part in four U.S. space flights, said the thrust of future space research would be "to look back at the earth and study it."

Such research could turn up valuable agricultural and climatological information, he said.

"There was criticism in the past that the lunar program wasn't really helping you and me, although it was great for the scientists," he said.

Lovell said that after a planned space rendezvous with the Russians in July, no more manned spaceflights are planned until a new basic launch vehicle is developed.

The former astronaut made his remarks Thursday at a meeting of college officials called together to open the Southwest Regional Physical Fitness and Sports Clinic at the university.

The two-day event was sponsored by the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. Lovell is chairman of the council.

Describing his reactions to his flights, Lovell said he learned that "everything in life is relative."

"The second thing I learned was that we live on a limited planet. The earth from up there is a ball you can put your thumb over. You think, 'the earth is all I have, my friends are there, there's no place else to go.'"

'30s weather, depression 'fair and mild' in L.B.?

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Staff Writer

Heavy grey rain clouds blanketed much of the continent those dreary closing days of February 1933, adding to the torment of untold numbers of Americans dispossessed and made hungry by a massive economic disruption that later would come to be known as The Great Depression.

In Long Beach, however, where late winter weather remained placidly, almost monotonously transition in national and international affairs.

On the local scene, as recorded in the pages of The Press-Telegram, it was a time in which the city and its leaders were coming to grips with what earlier had been called a mere "business downturn," and there are certain fascinating similarities between events then and the economically uncertain world in which we now live.

Across the wide Atlantic moat, in a land where Yanks only 15

Some help was available here. President Herbert Hoover's highly publicized Reconstruction Finance Corporation was providing $500,000, money enough to hire 1,250 unemployed for work on a variety of civic betterment projects. Top priority would go to men with the largest number of dependents.

The first in a continuing series of ads built around drawings of Civil, Spanish-American and Great War soldiers appeared that week with an intriguing headline:

In '61 We Fought for Freedom
In '33 We're Starting a Fight
For Economic Freedom Under General Dollar

SPEND AN EXTRA DOLLAR!
It was a campaign devised by the Long Beach Convention and Publicity Bureau, then an arm of the Chamber of Commerce. As explained by a later ad featuring a ed was a former shoe manufacturer from Canada who, pistol in hand, had been pondering self-destruction. But a fatal heart attack intervened before he could pull the trigger.

Later generations who have known only the deficit spending economic philosophy of John Maynard Keynes might puzzle over an editorial page squib taken from the Wall Street Journal. The writer pointed out what must have been a shocking concept in 1933: "Inflation is the only answer to depression."

Martial law was ordered for Weimar Germany, and ladies silk undies sold here for a dollar a pair. Rayon copies of the same item were a mere 39 cents each.

Some stories seemingly go on forever. For instance, the 1932-33 Los Angeles County Grand Jury teed off on Los Angeles County economy. And details were provided of the inauguration, the last to be held on March 4, as the Constitution's framers had decreed.

Some unemployed Long Beach men below the age of 26 formed the "Depression Beaters Club" to work together in seeking jobs for all. And City Manager E. S. Dobbins

March 2 was another mild day here, and in Sacramento, Gov. James Rolph Jr. ordered a three-day statewide bank holiday. Winter naval maneuvers were ending in Southland waters, while in Long Beach there was an air of antici-asked City Council to consider reducing penalties assessed against delinquent taxpayers, "recognizing the need for revenue to provide essential services."

More and more stories from across the land told of bank closings — "bank holidays" they were called — or stringent limitations placed by worried banking officials on cash withdrawals.

The big local story involved preparations for welcoming USS Constitution when this famed survivor of the War of 1812 dropped anchor here in early March. Ironically enough, "Old Ironsides" arrival would coincide with that of a major disaster still to come as February ended. The Long Beach earthquake of March 10 would profoundly alter, probably for the better, the entire course of economic recovery here.

On March 1, President Herbert Hoover sent to Congress a plan "to assist railroads, individuals and farmers facing bankruptcy." On his last day in office, the measure would be approved by the outgoing Legislature. Long Beach that day was promised $65,000 from Hoover's RFC for use in digging a sewer.

March 2 was another mild day here, and in Sacramento, Gov. James Rolph Jr. ordered a three-day statewide bank holiday. Winter naval maneuvers were ending in Southland waters, while in Long Beach there was an air of antici-

Quickly drawn ads assured residents here that many businesses would accept checks or, in the case of a theater chain, their patrons' IOUs. Hancock Oil Co. began paying its people in scrip and promised in an ad to redeem this "funny money" in cash at full face value.

Banks reopened March 3 and the late H.F. "Hank" Burmester, then P-T financial editor, told of a "perceptible quickening in business activities" here.

Saturday, March 4, 1933. Grey wet and cold in Washington, D.C., pleasantly mild here, where the top headline of the day proclaimed in "end-of-the-world size type: FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT BECOMES PRESIDENT. In somewhat smaller letter the subhead fervently noted, "Hopeful Nation Looks to Democratic Executives." A new era was beginning.

It was a period in which 'the old order passeth.'

"fair and mild," hundreds of expatriate Midwesterners motored or rode the Big Red Cars to Los Angeles and the 33rd annual Iowa Picnic.

Porterhouse steak sold at Ralphs here for 22½-cents a pound, and 3 one-pound cans of Campbell's pork and beans cost a dime. Since food stamps remained to be invented later, cash before carrying was required.

The late Walter Case, a respected local historian and working newsman here throughout the decade, wrote in about 1935 that Long Beach was not badly hurt by this global social and economic tragedy. His is a challengeable view, and one Case himself may well have modified in later years.

Seemingly the pit of the depression arrived here by the last week of February.

It was the period in which "The old order passeth," to use a biblical phrase historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr. applies to this time of years earlier had fought in World War I to "make the world safe for democracy," a weak and crumbling German republic was given the final shove into extinction that week. Adolf Hitler's brownshirted bullyboys torched the Reichstag and blamed it all on the Communists. Daddery old President von Hindenberg later would appoint Hitler chancellor to combat this menace, and the horrors of Nazism would be a long step nearer.

Back in Long Beach, the City Council was investigating allegations that certain police officers were taking "protection money" from bootleggers — then operating almost openly in all parts of town.

There were other stories in The P-T of that week. Possible annexation of open land near the airport for one. And scattered through each edition were items telling of the jobless men, despairing women and hungry children who lived beside the beach or in shallow pits scooped in the sand.

'Inflation is the only answer to depression.'

"talking" dollar bill: "Every time I change hands, someone makes a profit. Spend an extra dollar!"

Seemingly substantiating a Depression-era legend of suicide following sudden fiscal failures was the story of a man found dead in an Ocean Boulevard apartment. Although cause of death mysteriously went unreported in the first story, it was recorded there that a "suicide note" found by police read "... there is no need for a post mortem. I did it. I got to the end of my rope. No home, tired of living, money all gone...."

A later story at least partly explained the mystery. The deceased government, labelling it "archaic, incompetent and enormously expensive."

A newly landed Martian reading these issues without other knowledge of Long Beach would sense change in the offing, a growing feeling of restrained if uncertain hope for the future. Local Democrats — and there weren't that many of them here then — announced a local celebration scheduled concurrently with the March 4 inauguration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Wire service stories speculated at length about FDR's possible programs and their impact on the

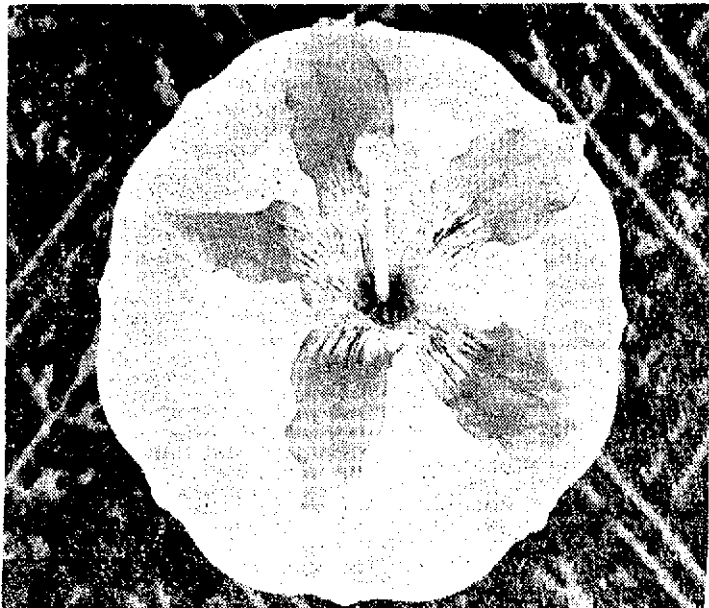

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

The Floss Silk tree, Chorisia speciosa, is a spiny delicious tree whose trunk base is considerably larger in diameter than most kinds of trees. It is a spectacularly showy tree when it burgeons forth with star-shaped pink blossoms in the fall.

The seeds in the fruit-pods are encased in a silk-like cotton substance. The trees grow in the milder areas of Southern California. Chorisia speciosa, "Majestic Beauty" is grafted from selected variety to insure a deep rich pink color. And naturally, the grafted plants tend to grow quicker.

Plants also grow faster as the weather becomes milder. Christmas gift plants that didn't die, may be planted out in the garden. Poinsettias can be planted in the garden close to a wall with a south exposure where they'll get reflected heat. Soil must be prepared before they are planted.

CHORISIA . . . star-like blossom

CYCLAMEN gift plants, too, will grow in a shade garden. We've seen two plantings of such plants, one somewhat near the coast, while the other planting was in a dry and colder area. Plants grew well in both localities. They love an east exposure where they'll get several hours of sun. They must be planted in pre-moistened peat moss or a shade planter mix. The material should be mixed with equal parts of soil. The top quarter inch of the cyclamen bulb must be above the soil level! Otherwise, the soil covered bulb, where the leaf and flower stems emerge, will grow stunted and the blossoms will be short-stemmed, weak or distorted. Sometimes the leaf and blossom stems rot off.

Azaleas gift plants, too, should be put outdoors. They can remain in the same pot, if not pot-bound, or planted in a shade garden.

Let's not forget the bare root roses we've set out, nor the deciduous trees — whether fruit, flowering, or shade — and the bare root canberries, strawberries, asparagus, grapes, rhubarb and artichokes. They must be kept moist till well sprouted out. Those planted last December and January should have sprouted. If they haven't, the chances are the gardener hasn't kept the soil moist. If the soil has been moist, possibly the soil wasn't firmed well, therefore the water rushes through the loosely packed soil down below where the roots "ain't". Soil must be well firmed.

THERE'S still a lot of good bare root plants, fruits and vegetables to be set out, but the gardener must hurry and get them in before they sprout too much.

Vegetable or flower beds that are to be planted must be soaked at least eight inches deep a day or two before planting time. Plant holes that are dry must be filled with water. The plants are set out in the holes after the water has disappeared into the soil.

Iris growers have a problem controlling aphids at the base of the foliage, because aphids get into the hollow foliage base where the leaves grow out from the rhizome. About the most effective control is to use malathion with some detergent added. The spray solution should be mixed in warm water, then sprayed around base of the leaves. Malathion is a strong fuming action insecticide that dissipates quickly. Warm water makes the spray more effective.

Those forced hybrid amaryllis grown indoors in pots, to bloom, should be fed a flower-fruit fertilizer, so the bulbs absorb

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

FEB. 24-MARCH 2, 1975

Winter, still we see many charms in thee.

Timber cut now is less subject to decay . . . Last survivor of the Boston Tea Party died Feb. 24, 1852 . . . Full moon Feb. 25 . . . Past seized by Indians at Wounded Knee Feb. 27, 1975 . . . Average length of days for week, 11 hours, 6 minutes . . . Ludlow, Conn. (14,777 acres) was purchased for $60 Feb. 26, 1649 . . . Humbug-layers turned Florida turtles red Feb. 26, 1969 . . . Forget others' faults by remembering your own.

Ask the Old Farmer: When I was a boy, I used to hear the expression "asleep at the switch," meaning someone who was lax in his duties. Do you have any idea where the saying originated? O. M., Little Rock.

This is old railroad jargon — a switchman had to open and close switches in a railroad yard, for example, and if he wasn't on the job, a lot happened to make him up.

Home Blues: For a wonderful punch in a cover, a ball of steel wool with a brushy strip of material. It sharpens your needles and pins.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Begins a year of adjustment to simplified material enterprises. Be sure you pursue spiritual enlightenment with daily prayer. Relationships deepen and become inconvenient if you don't discipline your actions well. Today's natives are fond of pleasure, connoisseurs of good foods and luxury.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your personal habits become austere. Your friends are in their pitching to help you find new contacts and a business opportunity.

Libra (Sept. 21-Oct. 22): Stay cheerful. Set your house in order and organize for a long stretch of action. Figure out how to adjust expenses to your budget.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Everyone is more willing to talk than usual. You can make definite progress by speaking out about what you want to happen. The larger the gathering this evening, the better.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Act on an impulse immediately despite previous plans. Attract attention and self ideas where possible. Make visits if you can't give a party yourself.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Come out of your solitude. Join the fun and movement of loved ones today. Don't rush, but stay alert. Loved ones, particularly youngsters, need your encouragement.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do your share without waiting to be asked. Promote your interests, enthusiastically, but try not to tell others what to do. Romantic interests are significant.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Set up your own schedule. Explore whatever intrigues you at the moment, and indulge in amusement or a restaurant. Bring along companions you know well.

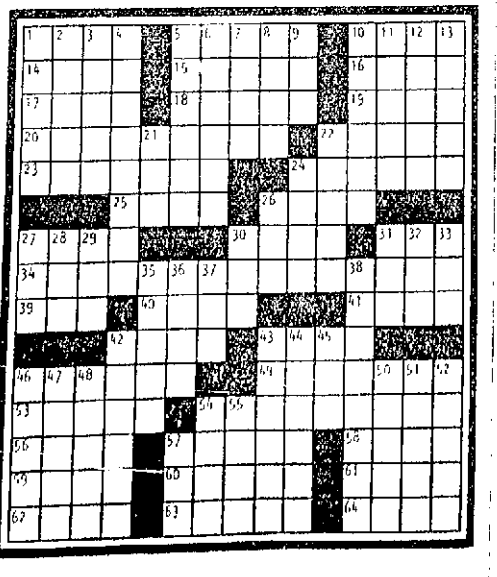

Aries (March 21-April 19): Make a full presentation of your achievements, but allow others to estimate their importance and value. You have reason to celebrate, but be sure to praise triumphs of friends, too.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Be prompt in your share of community observances. You form or activate important contacts. Travel and outside entertainment are favored. You may spot something for future use.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Competition is always present. Toot your own horn a bit today just for the fun of it. Your ideas turn out to be extremely helpful to your friends.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Once you've made your regular Sunday morning appearances, concentrate on those people you really care about. Catch up on their latest achievements, let your feelings be known.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 21): Pay attention! Someone is trying to tell you something. You have many good influences at work for you; don't let them down. Spend your leisure time outdoors if possible.

The index continued to slide for the week ended Feb. 8. After seasonal adjustments, auto and truck assemblies decreased sharply. Declines also occurred in intercity truck tonnage and rail freight. Production of steel, lumber, paperboard, and bituminous coal rose moderately. Slight gains were posted in paper, electric power, and crude-oil refinery runs. The weekly indexes in December and January have been revised downward, based on new monthly data on machinery and defense and space equipment.

Manufacturers must check environmental impact, too

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — A burgeoning new area of legal and bureaucratic regulation headaches for manufacturers concerns the impact of their products on the environment.

If quantities of detergent discharged into a stream or lake ruin the water quality, who is legally responsible, the housewives and business firms that discharged the detergents or the manufacturers who made and sold them?

If a concentration of boats moored in a salt water marina should lower the water quality and ruin fishing because of toxic antifouling paints on the boats' bottoms (there's no proof now that this can happen, only a suspicion) who's to blame: the boat owners or the makers of the paints?

If a manufacturer substitutes polyethylene resin for polyvinyl chloride in making window shades and, as a result, the blinds become a fire hazard, is the chemical manufacturer that sold the shade maker the resin equally guilty with the shade maker for creating the fire hazard?

These and hundreds of other similar questions are arising now and will arise in greater numbers in a country increasingly conscious of the environment.

The environmentalists are seeking financial regulatory authorities as product safety regulatory agencies in their campaign to make all business shoulder the burden of protecting the environment.

RECENTLY the Natural Resources Defense Council obtained a court order compelling the Securities and Exchange Commission to reconsider its refusal to order public corporations to make disclosures of any executive decisions, including decisions on products, that could harm the environment.

could have had environmental results.

Dow also had a case in which a quantity of its heat transfer medium in school air conditioning system accidentally seeped into the school's drinking water supply. Because Dow had foreseen the chance of such a freak accident and had provided instructions in advance, the condition was corrected promptly without any children becoming ill.

After some research, Dow also turned down a large order from a manufacturer who wanted to package a caustic-based household cleaning solution in containers made from a Dow barrier film which is highly successful as a beverage container.

DOW SAID the film was not safe enough for a caustic substitution and since it often is used to package fruit juice, children might mistake a caustic fluid so packaged for a beverage, with dire consequences.

There's still a huge proliferation of regulations under the traditional law. Government and consumer agencies, for example, come up every year with ideas for new tests and regulations to make toys safer.

Can John Wayne outdraw hustlers?

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

John Wayne has gone up against plenty of bad guys over the years and done just fine — but how will he do against bad girls?

We'll find out tonight when a Wayne movie overlaps one about prostitutes.

The Wayne film is "The Train Robbers," a 1973 Western shot in and near Durango, Mexico, which is making its first appearance on the tube. It even has sex appeal for the men, what with Ann-Margret cavorting in tight-fitting blouse and dungarees.

The film about "the world's oldest profession" is a new TV drama called "Hustling."

Wayne draws first, getting an hour headstart. Both movies last two hours. "The Train Robbers" starting at 8 on Channel 4 and "Hustling" beginning at 9 on Channel 7.

"Hustling" is based on reporter Gail Sheehy's book about the big business of prostitution in New York City. Emmy Award-winning writer Fay Kanin did the frank screenplay, and the film was directed by Joseph Sargent, who gave us "The Marcus-Nelson Murders" on TV and the theatrical movie "The Taking of Pelham One Two Three."

LEE REMICK stars in "Hustling" as a reporter for a news magazine who sets out to do a series of definitive articles on hookers and the pimps and others who profit from them.

She meets and becomes friends with some girls who have been booked on prostitution charges, and delves into the financial and other aspects of their lives.

Jill Clayburgh is the main prostitute, Wanda, with Melanie Mayron as Dee Dee and Beverly Hope Atkinson as Gizelle.

Monte Markham, star of the short-lived "New Parry Mason" series, plays Miss Remick's boyfriend, and Alex Rocco is Swift.

It shouldn't even be necessary to mention that "Hustling" won't be to the taste of all viewers. For the film aims at giving a realistic picture of the world of prostitutes — short of showing explicit sex acts.

Even reporter Remick goes to bed with her boyfriend. You don't suppose Frank Sinatra would call HER a hooker, do you?

DR. MALCOLM TODD of Long Beach, president of the American Medical Association, will be interviewed on the soaring costs of malpractice insurance and legal suits against doctors Sunday on CBS' "60 Minutes."

The news-magazine type program, hosted by Mike Wallace and Morley Safer, will air from 6 to 7 p.m. on Channel 2. Speaking of medicine, three physicians over the age of 85 will discuss the changes they have seen during their careers on "Medix," airing on Channel 2 at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. The physicians are Dr. Charles Lowman, 95; Dr. Walter Alvarez, 90, and Dr. Esther Kratz, 87. Mario Machado hosts the weekly "Medix" series, produced by Dave Bell Associates for the Los Angeles County Medical Association and KNXT.

SCOTT will make the keynote address, Gene Kelly will be the host and numerous celebrities will take part in the two-hour "Entertainment Hall of Fame Awards" special on Channel 4 at 10 tonight. The ceremonies at the Hollywood Palladium will honor 10 "creators and performers of the 20th century not for what they last did, but for what they did that will last." Five of the awards will be made posthumously.

"Oliver!" Elizabeth Montgomery's "The Legend of Lizzie Borden" didn't fare as well as most of her TV movies, finishing No. 21. The movie "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom" was 34th on the list, but Life or death for pets is many times merely a question of economics. If it's too expensive to heal a sick or injured animal, the veterinarian can simply put it to sleep. It's the owner's choice. The cost and ethics surrounding pet health care are explored by staff writer James M. Leavy this Sunday in Life/style.

Douglass fires 69, leads L.A. Open by three

Glamour golfers gone with the wind

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

An ill wind blew across Riviera Country Club Friday and made raving maniacs out of most of the pros in the $150,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

When the carnage was over only slender Dale Douglass and young Tom Kite were able to break par on the demanding 6,847-yard course whose toughness was tarnished on opening day when 48 players shot par or better.

Douglass, with a 69 in the morning when the wind was at its worst, vaulted into a three-stroke lead at 5-under-par 139. Kite, also with a 69, moved into a tie for second with Tom Watson (73) and Victor Regalado (71).

The glamour golfers played like duffers, starting with 62-year-old Sam Snead, who skied to an 82 and missed the cut by one stroke at 150. Seven-over-par is the highest cut on the tour this year.

JOHN DIXON, Sports Editor
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1975

Lee Trevino, the first-round leader at 66, ballooned to a 78. Arnold Palmer four-putted the last hole and also took 78. J. C. Snead carded a 77. Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Dave Stockton posted 75s.

Except for Kite, the 48 players who shot par or better on the first day had higher scores Friday. Twenty-one players registered scores in the 80s. You wouldn't think that the wind could cause this much damage.

Seven golfers managed even-par scores. They were Gibby Gilbert, Rex Kern, Bob Goalby, Pat Fitzsimons, Mike Hill and Orville Moody. Fitzsimons is tied with Gene Littler, (72) for fifth at 141.

Long Beach's Terry Small was one of many who thought this was Black Friday. He totaled 85. But it wasn't the highest score of the day. Lionel Hebert shot 87 after an opening 72.

Johnny Miller posted a 73 but moved from 49th place to a tie for 25th.

Nicklaus made the most fitting remark when he peeked his head into the press room and remarked, "Did anyone make the cut?"

Three amateurs did. They were USC's Craig Stadler (75-143) and Jim Rusiecki (73-148), and Riverside's Ken Riley (76-149).

Most notable non-qualifiers were Snead, Romero Blancas, George Archer, Miller Barber, Al Geiberger and Phil Rodgers.

Douglass, 38, of Golden, Colo., hasn't won a tour-namment in nearly five years and thought about quitting after the 1973 campaign in which he finished 157th in earnings, collecting only $9,251.

Had he not reached the exempt list in 1974 — he finished 58th — Douglass might not be playing today. The 13-year tour veteran admitted "golf wasn't fun anymore."

But it was exciting Friday. Unlike Kite, who scrambled to his 69, Douglass had many opportunities to improve his score. He missed birdie putts of 2 1/2, 5 and 6 feet on the 14th, 16th and 17th holes.

"I should be leading by more," he admitted, "but I have a slight imperfection in my putting stroke. I hit some of the best wood and iron shots I've ever hit in the wind."

His putting wasn't all that bad. Three of his birdies came on putts of 25, 15 and 12 feet. He also holed a 4-footer. He took

The second time around . . .

Lee Trevino blasts out of trap to 10th green, just one of many obstacles he encountered during Friday's second round of L.A. Open golf tourney at Riviera. After carding 5-under 66 on Thursday, Trevino soared to 78.

Vikings spill Pierce

By PAUL MCLEOD
Staff Writer

Only one week remains in Metropolitan Conference play, but after Friday night it's the most important week of all.

"We'll start thinking about Bakersfield right now," said Viking coach Bill Fraser after nailing down a third consecutive Metro win, 78-70, over Pierce College.

"We'll practice Sunday," said Fraser. "If we don't, we won't have time to prepare."

The Vikings didn't have a breather against the Brahmas. Although Long Beach led by as many as 13 points late in the game, Pierce continued to fight back, getting to within seven points with 5:31 to play.

But poor ballhandling cut the Brahmas short. They committed 26 turnovers, 17 in the first half.

Long Beach fared little better, turning the ball over 21 times.

The Vikings' full-court press made the difference. With Dean Decker and Danny Marques harassing Pierce in the backcourt, Long Beach took an early lead and never looked back. Decker stole four consecutive passes in the early moments. Marques finished with nine assists.

"We noticed in films the other day that our press wasn't what it should be," Dawdy explained. "We thought our kids knew how to work it, but we were wrong. We realized they didn't have it down right and we corrected them. It paid off."

With center Jeff McHugh in foul trouble most of the night, Fraser relied heavily on his bench.

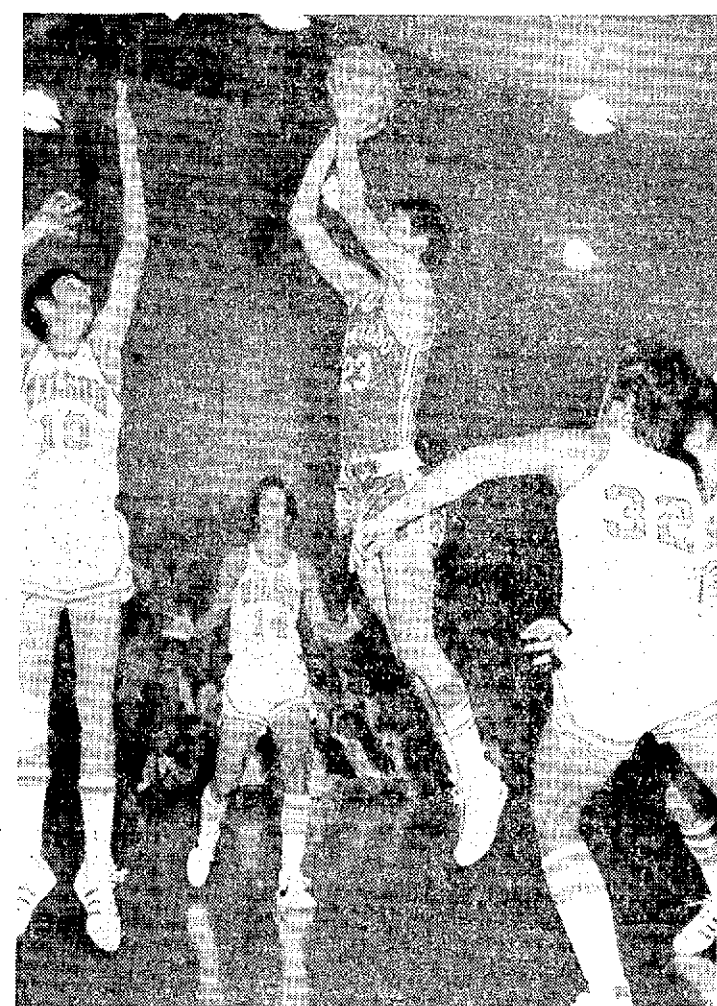

Rod Dalton responded superbly, scoring 18 points, while Brian Lenzen added 12. Dalton used his 6-3 frame and capitalized inside, and Lenzen tore apart Pierce's zone with his outside shooting.

Lakewood fights off Wilson in overtime

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

No one can say Lakewood High didn't begin or end its Moore League basketball season with a flourish.

The Lancers opened league competition five weeks ago by upsetting Jordan on TV, 59-55.

Then the team faded, losing eight games in a row. Friday night erased a lot of those frustrations.

Kevin Weaver capped Lakewood's season with a desperation shot as time ran out in overtime to give the Lancers a 82-80 overtime victory over playoff-bound Wilson.

The incredible ending saw Weaver grab off a block in mid-air by Carl Stammerjohn of a shot by Brett Wolf at 0:03, then in the same motion get off a 14-foot shot that won the game.

Weaver had given the Lancers their last two points of regulation play with 13 seconds to go.

Reserve Scott Huffman got the two points back in a hurry for Wilson, not hesitating to put through a 22-foot jumper with five seconds showing.

Huffman continued his heroics in overtime to give Wilson leads of 78-76 and 80-78 that offset baskets by Mickey Chislock.

But the Bruins turned the ball over at 0:27 on a blocking foul by Stammerjohn that gave Lakewood the last shot.

Fouls were dished out in wholesale lots. Wilson's first six players fouled out; the Bruins were called for 37.

Wilson's lineup starting the three-minute overtime was Stammerjohn, Huffman, Steve Phillips, Kevin Riley and Ken Starks — who collectively had scored 31 points in nine league games.

Lakewood gave the Bruins plenty of problems. "One world record a night," the Long Beach State student joyfully crowed to the officials.

advantage to get good position inside all night.

The Lancers led by as many as 13 points, 40-27, in the second quarter before Neil Arnold got hot.

Arnold, who missed five shots in a row in the first quarter, was torrid in the third period when Wilson rebounded to set the stage for the wild finish.

Arnold finished with 28 points before fouling out with 2 minutes to play in regulation.

A preview of the wrapup had come at the end of the third quarter when Lakewood's Fred Powers sank a 48-foot crosstown shot to draw the teams even, 56-56.

CEY BEATS DODGERS; REGGIE DECISION DUE

Combined News Services

Reggie Jackson wants $28,500 more than Charles O. Finley is willing to pay him. But the irascible owner of the Oakland A's has a few figures to bandy about, too—most of them negative.

Finley claimed Friday at the arbitration hearing in Los Angeles that his star outfielder declined in 11 major categories while improving in only three during 1974. "Reggie did not have as good a year in 1974 as he had in 1973," Finley said.

Jackson received $135,000 after a favorable arbitrator's ruling in 1974 and Finley said he offered him $140,000 this year. But Jackson demanded $168,500.

"I would not be here if I did not think I deserved the raise," said Jackson, adding he was satisfied with the arbitration proceedings conducted by William Simkin of Tucson, who said he would reveal his decision today, on Charlie's 57th birthday.

In five previous arbitrations with his players this year, Finley leads, 3-2, with the Jackson case his last.

In another arbitration development, third baseman

Ron Cey won his dispute with the National League champion Dodgers.

Financial figures were not revealed in the Cey case. Dodger vice president Al Campanis said, "Cey has been awarded a high percentage increase."

Settlement of the Cey case leaves 19-game winner Don Sutton the only Dodger still to appear in arbitration. Unlike the Cey case, this arbitration, to be argued Tuesday, was sought by the club, not by the player.

Whereas Campanis emerged from the negotiations sessions with his arm around Cey, the Jackson and Finley entourage left the room separately.

Asked if he thought a loss by Jackson at the bargaining table might influence his play for the A's, Finley replied: "No. I believe if Reggie loses he will lose as graciously as I lost last year."

In other arbitration decisions, the Texas Rangers announced that first baseman-designated hitter Jim Spencer had won his case, while Minnesota's Bert Blyleven and Boston's Bernie Carbo lost theirs. Blyleven, who was paid $55,000 last year, was reportedly seeking $85,000.

Stones' St. Anthony champs fourth extend streak to nine

High jumps 7-5 3/4; Baird vaults 17-9

Combined Wire Services
NEW YORK—Conditions were right, the measurement was right and so was high jumper Dwight Stones Friday night as the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach soared 7 feet, 5 3/4 inches on his second attempt to set his fourth indoor record of the season at the U.S. Olympic Invitational.

He measured the bar himself Friday to avoid the recurrence of a mis-measurement by officials two weeks ago in the L.A. Indoor Games.

Two other Long Beach athletes also drew long, loud applause.

Pole vaulter Don Baird of Long Beach State won his second meet in a row by leaping a personal best of 17-9 and cracking Steve Smith's meet record of 17-6, before failing at 18-2. The PCC's Francie Lariou continued her dominance of women's middle distances by capturing the 1,500 meters in a meet record of 4:17.4, under the meet mark of 4:18.3 that she established last year.

Other highlights included Filbert Bayi's 3:41.1 clocking in the 1,500 meters — his fourth win in as many U.S. starts — an easy win for Riek Wöhler in the 1,000 meters at 2:22.2, and Clifford Outlin's 5.6 win over Ivory Crockett and Steve Williams in the 50-meter dash.
